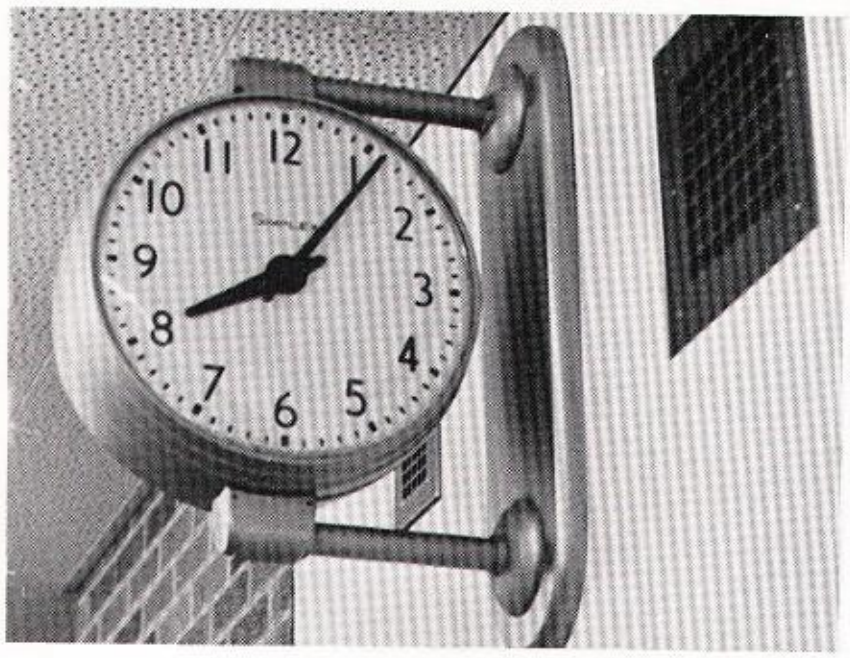
Pace setting Pioneers accept green flag; Second year makes NHS four year school

Pacing, growing, moving, patterning . . . these are the makings of a '64-'65 Pioneer. Just as a pace car gets the race off to a good start, this year's NHS'ers set a pace for their successors.

It was different this year; we weren't all new. We were ready to take last year's precedents a step toward traditions. In this year we acquired a senior class and finally became a fullfledged four year high school. We underwent self-evaluation and were accredited by the North Central Association. These are a few of the ways we set the pace.

In EVERYDAY EVENTS (PAGE 5), SPECIAL EVENTS (PAGE 17), and EXTRA-SPECIAL EVENTS (PAGE 28) we set a pattern. In September we were ready for the green flag to take the pace lap, and with our ACTIVITIES (PAGE 39), PARTICIPANTS (PAGE 59), and SPORTS (PAGE 103), we were on our way to pace the history of NHS.



At 8 o'clock there are only 15 minutes to talk to friends, visit lockers, and finish homework assignments before school begins.

The main hall before school, after school, and during school is a pleasant sight to all Pioneers. It serves as a crossroads for the student body, a showplace for student's work, a point of interest for visitors, and a place to meet friends.

The four bus routes are an important link for the 875 students who use them as a means of transportation. Two trips morning and evening made the trek home a relaxing one.

Routines 'set the pace' Each day for 1,868

As the morning of September 7th dawned the building was only a mass of concrete and steel, but with the school hour came the life blood of Northwest . . . the students.

Beginning a new day 1,868 Pioneers arrived by bus, car and foot, and as the clock struck eight, we hurried down the halls and up the stairs, eager to start. Banging lockers and searching for the right books, we greeted and chattered with old and new friends. We, in this move to our classes, began to set a pace which would carry on through, and after, our years at NHS.

When the final bell rang we left the now empty halls and settled down in our classrooms to receive the instruction and knowledge which 88 teachers offered; knowledge which would help us develop into fine American citizens who would set the pace for the future as well as at NHS.

A breezy mall can be a nice break for serious-minded Pioneers. Most students use it as a shortcut to beat the four minute bell.

A lot of many talents holds everything from future athletes to marching musicians as well as serving as a parking lot.

Knowledge gained daily Aids Pioneer growth

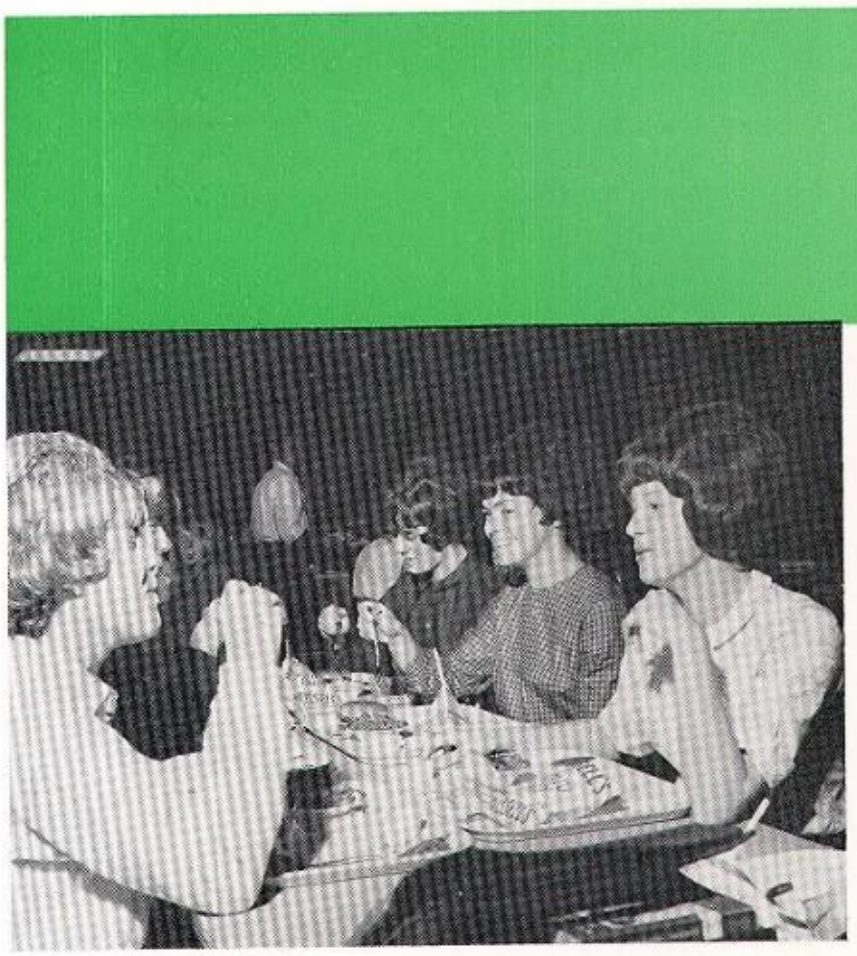
School is not all books and studying, but consists of an equally important insight, that of getting along with others. Pioneers practiced this worldly knowledge every day while riding the buses to and from school and while lunching in the cafeteria.

Such routine activities as purchasing paper in the bookstore, rushing to lockers between classes, greeting friends in the hall, and walking into a classroom brightened our day, and deepened this knowledge.

Mrs. Lewis, head librarian, helps people daily. Mr. Cummins, guidance director, is one of the 1800 people who use the library.

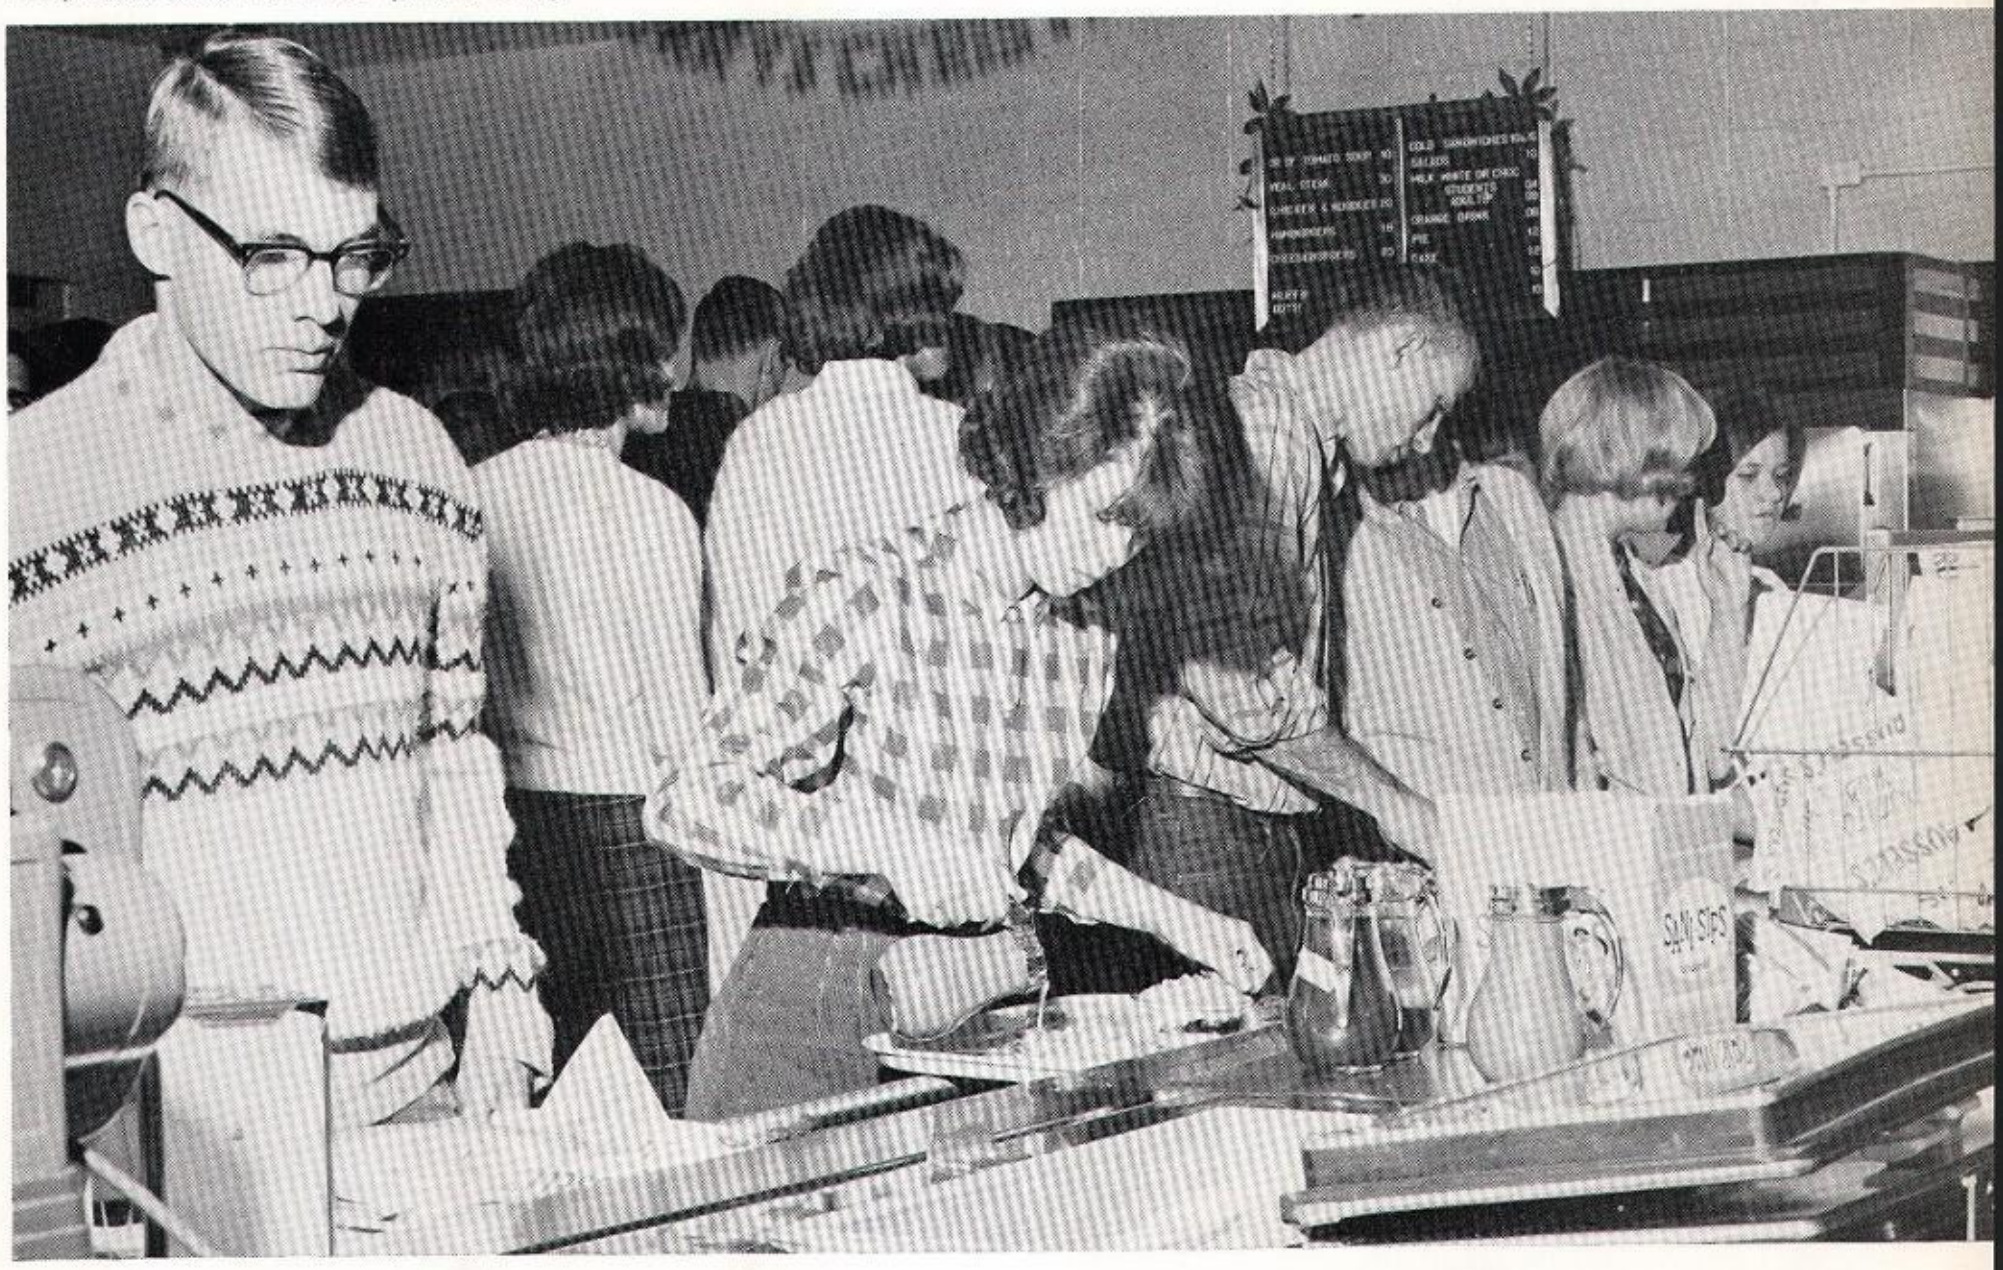
A school locker is a good treasure chest for the pack rat Pioneer. Joe Rich deives into his storehouse of supplies and needed junk.

The friendly smile of Mrs. Bonham, beams for potential customers at the bookstore, which in itself is a familiar sight to NHSers.



Lunch time is the best time of the day for most Pioneers. They can refuel, catch up on news, visit the bookstore, and relax.

A cafeteria line is a welcome sight to the 1,560 students who eat lunch daily in the school cafeteria. Thirty cooks serve meals four periods a day.



Class participation in history often includes using a map, as Carole Beckham, one of the department's 1,184 pupils illustrates.

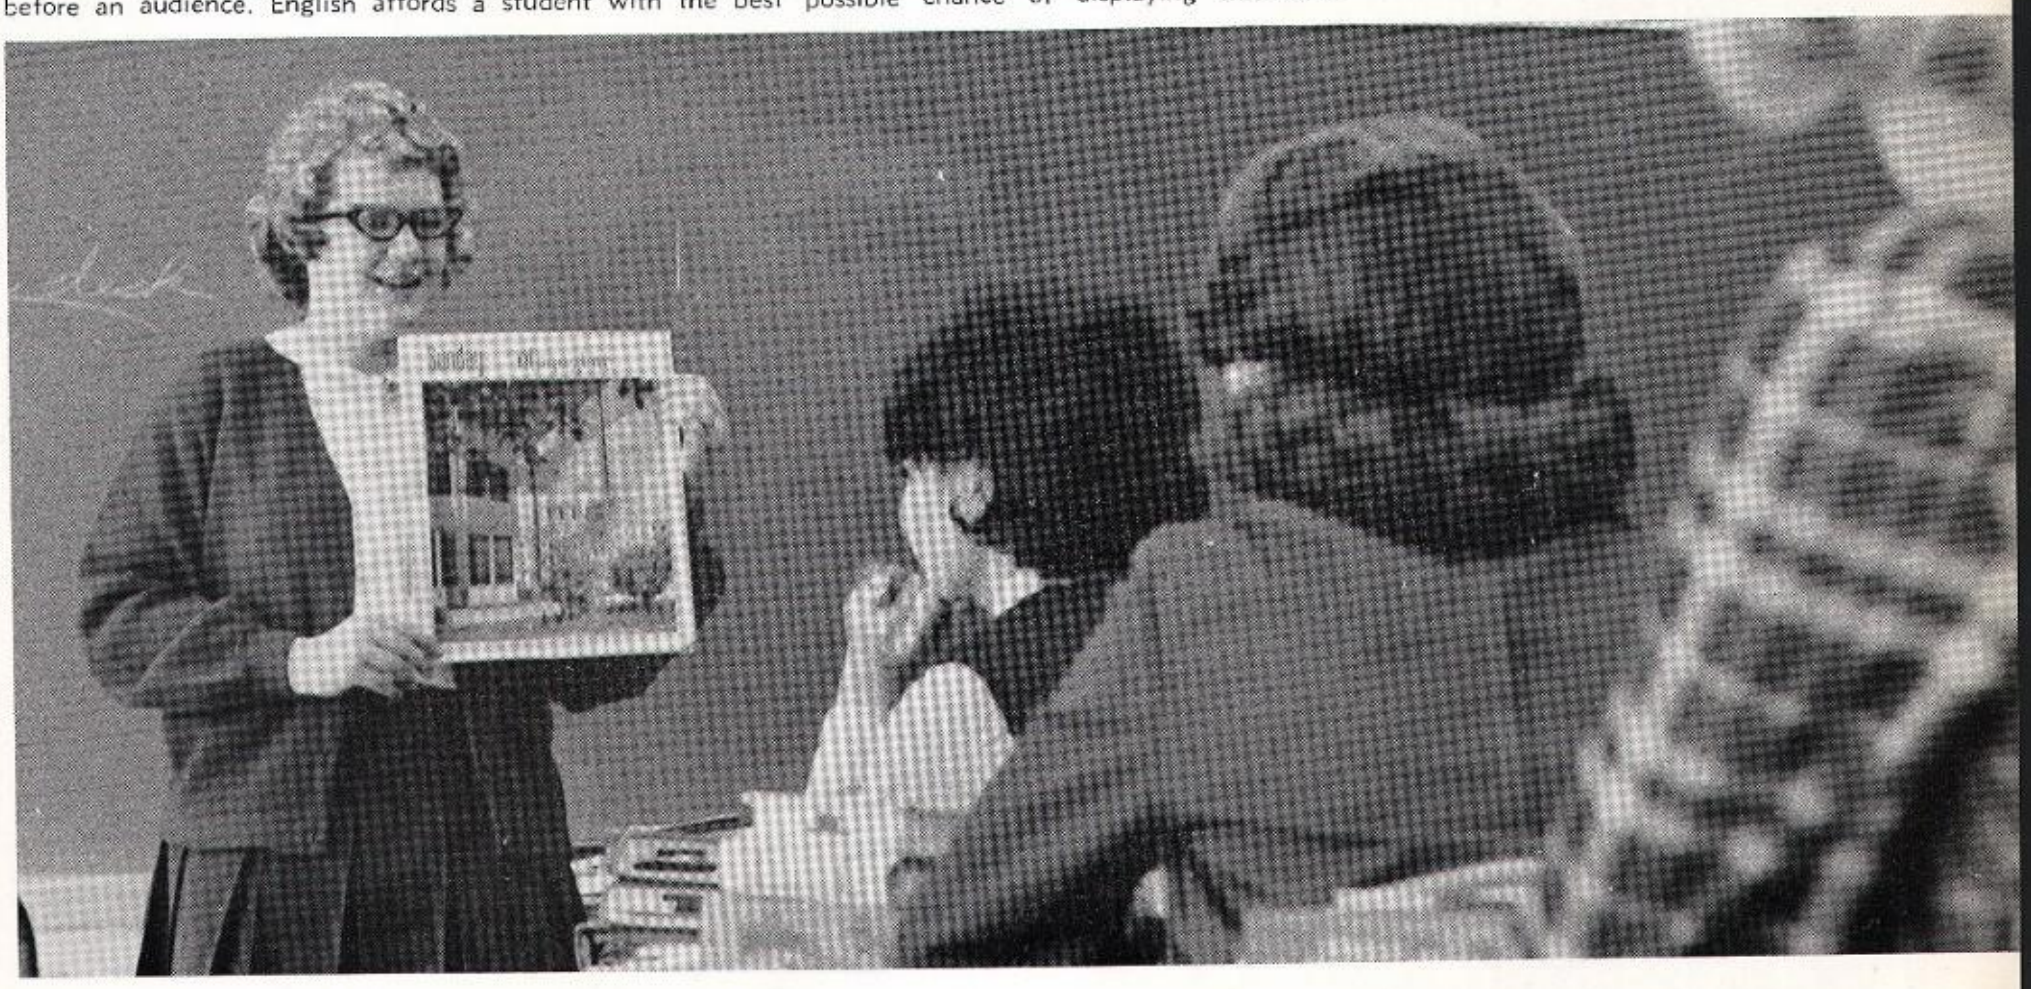
Routine drab bright Despite trite grind

NHS truly paced the way in modern facilities in its math, English, and language courses this year.

The opaque machine used by many of the 63 English classes, showed a pupil's work where it could be seen and criticized to his advantage. Of the 1,184 total social studies enrollment, 803 juniors and seniors in U.S. history and government held an election to learn the procedure in electing state and county officials.

In Spanish, French, and Latin NHSers used the language lab to study the sound and use of a language more accurately.

Visual aids are a big help in oral class reports. These reports are important in helping students gain experience before an audience. English affords a student with the best possible chance of displaying this skill.



Jimmy James, like most wood-shop students, finds that it not only takes skill and patience, but a lot of hard work to build even a small mansion. Over 91 boys work on projects like this in their wood shop classes.

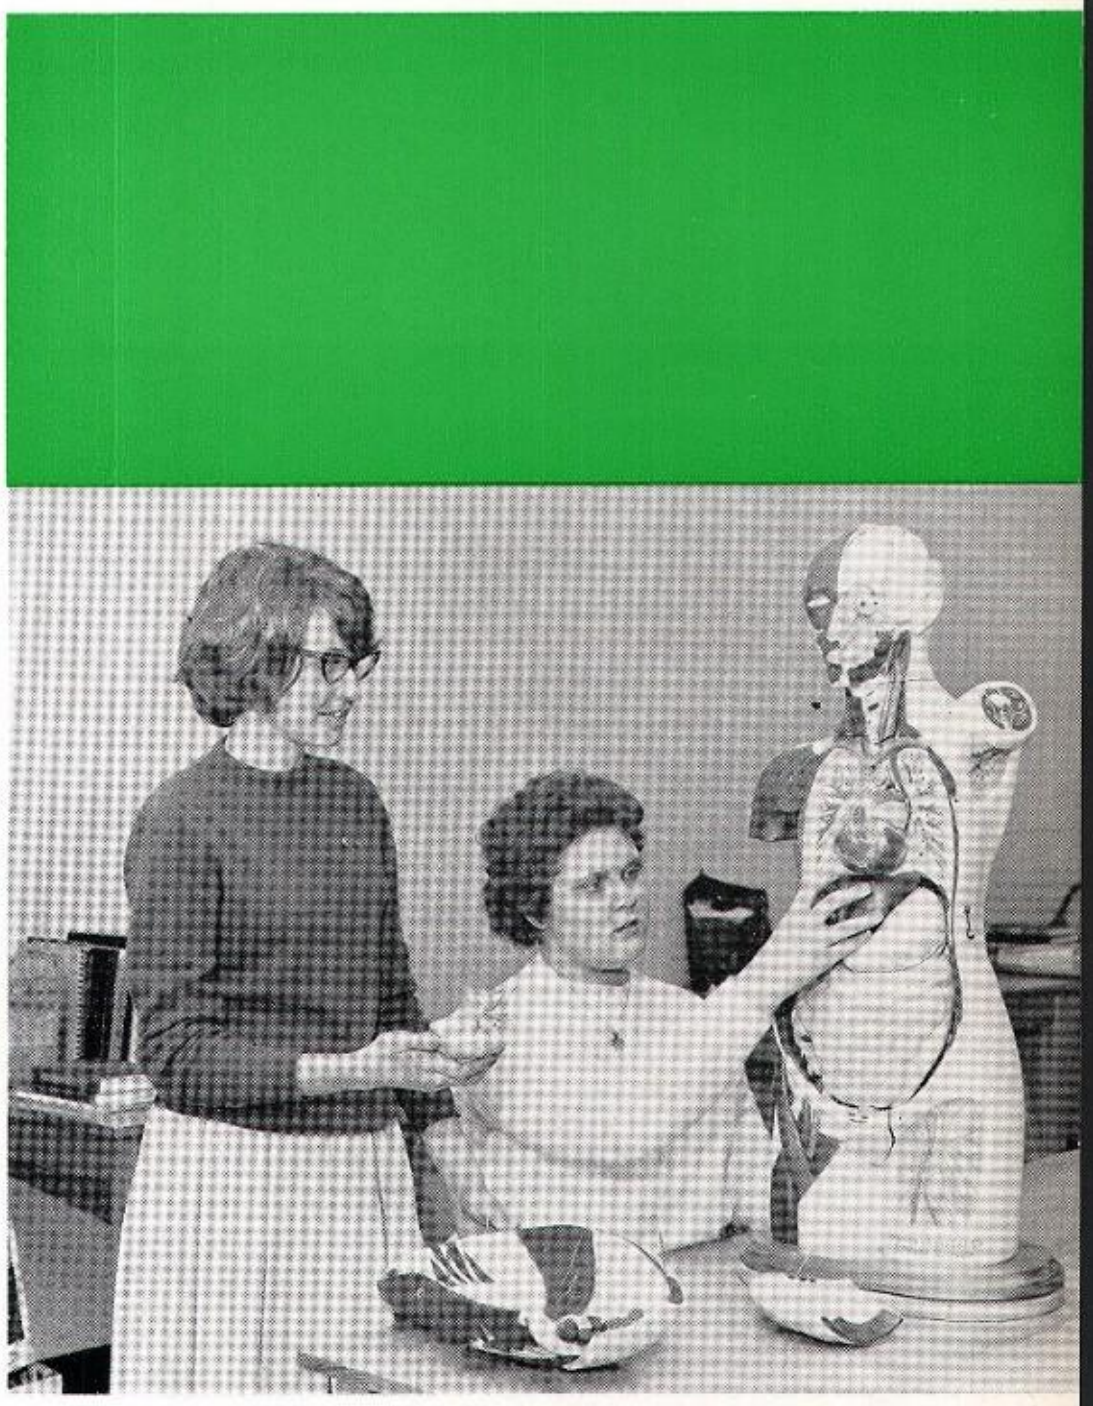
Math, science courses Make use of logic, skill

Varied science and mathematics courses were offered to Northwest students. NHS had a total of 7 math teachers drilling Pioneers in 6 main courses such as algebra, general math, and trigonometry.

Math helped us in science courses and other areas. Math and science projects contributed to a well-rounded education.

Math problems can be quite challenging to the math major. Math curriculum varies greatly from general math to college algebra.

No thwest's halls appeared to be bowling lanes as June Scott, Dennis Harrold, and Steve Richie demonstrate velocity.



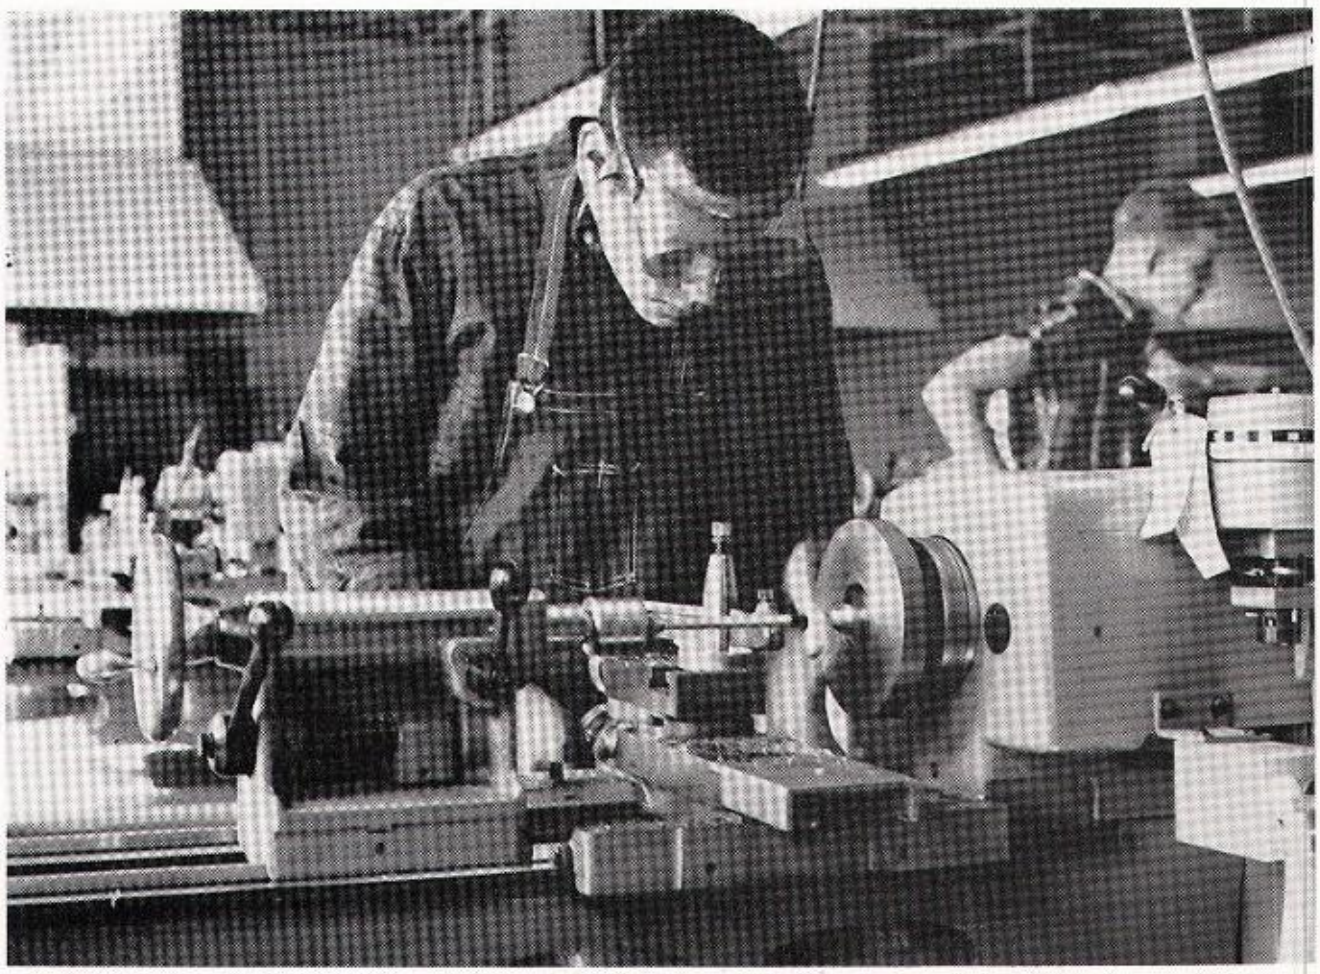
Biology classes involve strange but interesting courses of study. Disecting, tests, and lecturing are all essentials of Biology.

Donna Lively presents the model heart to the school from the National Heart Fund.

Figures are a snap for Jay Mills, a machine calculation pupil. He finds math is made easy with the use of new electric machines.

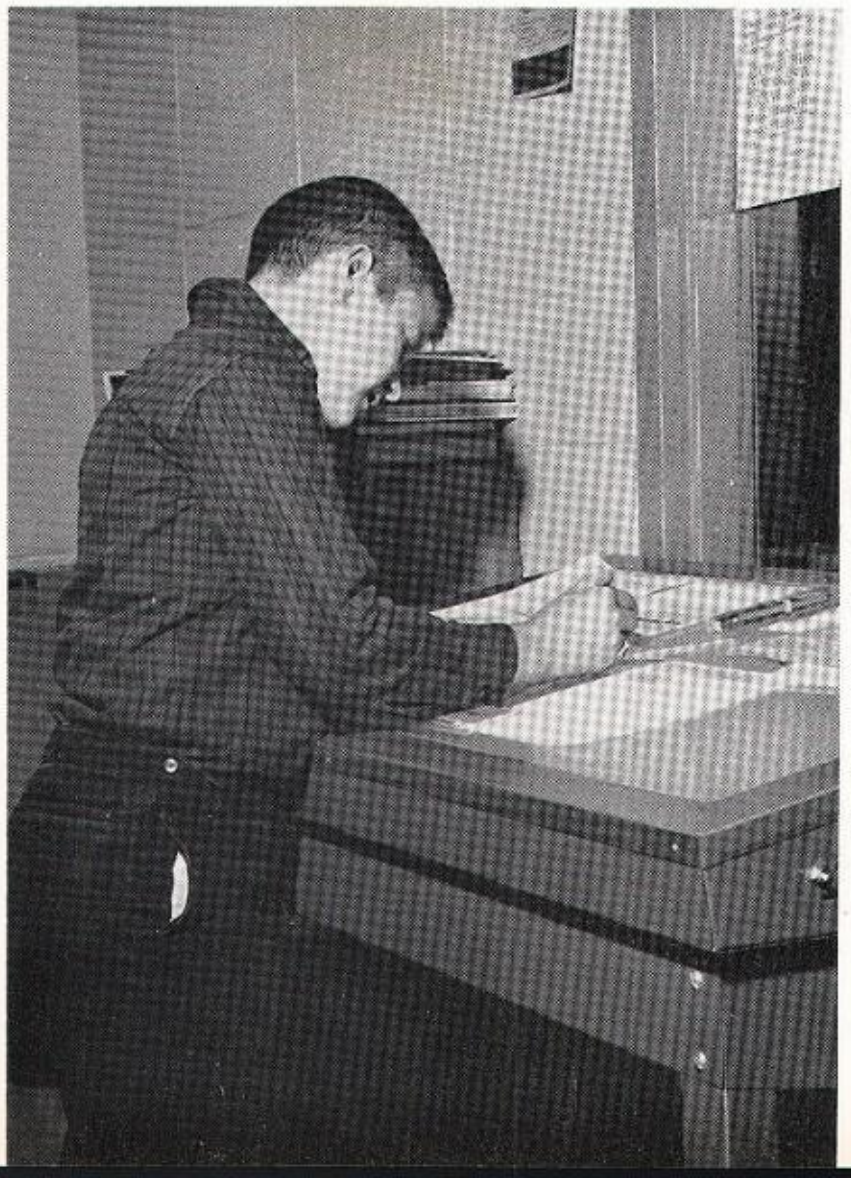
Practice makes perfect . . . is the motto of the students enrolled in the 14 typing classes; rhythm and coordination are involved.

Take me to your leader, in this case, Dr. Shuck-boy's shop teacher. Boys are attired in goggles, aprons, and other familiar garb.



Setting type by hand is a facet of printing that must be practiced over and over for perfection. Jim Hammer, Steve Chambers, Micky Harris, and Jerry Dean become proficient at this task in print shop.

Ben Wills, a Journalism II student, pastes up Telstar at the light table, as another paper gets ready to go to the print shop.

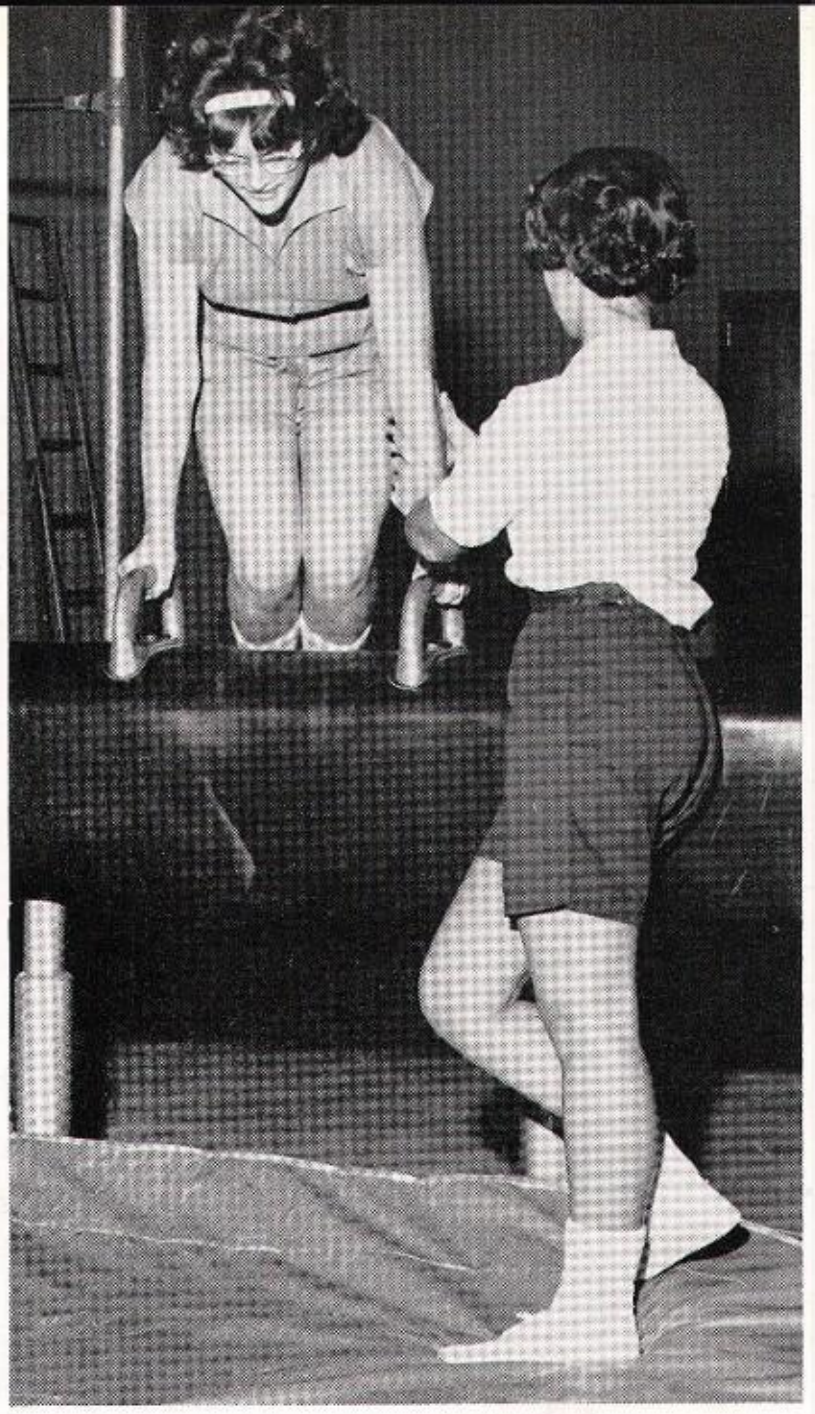


Classes introduce useful Information for future

Northwest offered a variety of specialized courses which gave a business-minded student a head start toward the career of his choice. If secretarial office work was an intended vocation, there were 7 electives that helped prepare students for such a career. The instructors involved in teaching typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, and general business helped beginners to climb the steps to becoming better businessmen.

Journalism classes, under the supervision of Miss Maureen Cunningham, brought the basic principles of the journalistic field to the students. In Journalism I - II and Publications, I - IV, students learned about such things as lead writing, make-up, and printing devices used in newspaper and yearbook work.

Mike Eberhard, Steve Stephanoff, and Sandy Sanford seem to disagree on a basic point in their family living course.



Physical Education classes give girls a chance to exercise and to promote physical fitness. This horse is a hard task.

Future skills are learned in Home Economics classes, Lorraine Warren acquires an addition to her wardrobe.

Specialized courses aid Career-minded Pioneers

Northwest grew in many aspects this past year toward its line of specialized subjects. A student interested in homemaking, foods, and clothing learned how to increase her wardrobe by sewing and how to prepare a well-balanced meal in food classes. Pioneers wishing to learn to drive learned this skill correctly and safely in one of the six driver's education classes. Physical education and family living served as a sound basis for health and living patterns which will be carried on throughout life.

There were capable teachers for these courses, offered to forward-looking students at Northwest.

pom girls formed the 'Big N' that displayed our school spirit to visiting sports fans.

Lettering classes at NHS prepare art students for commercial lettering and offers a good basic course for future art majors.

NHS distinctions Produce special events

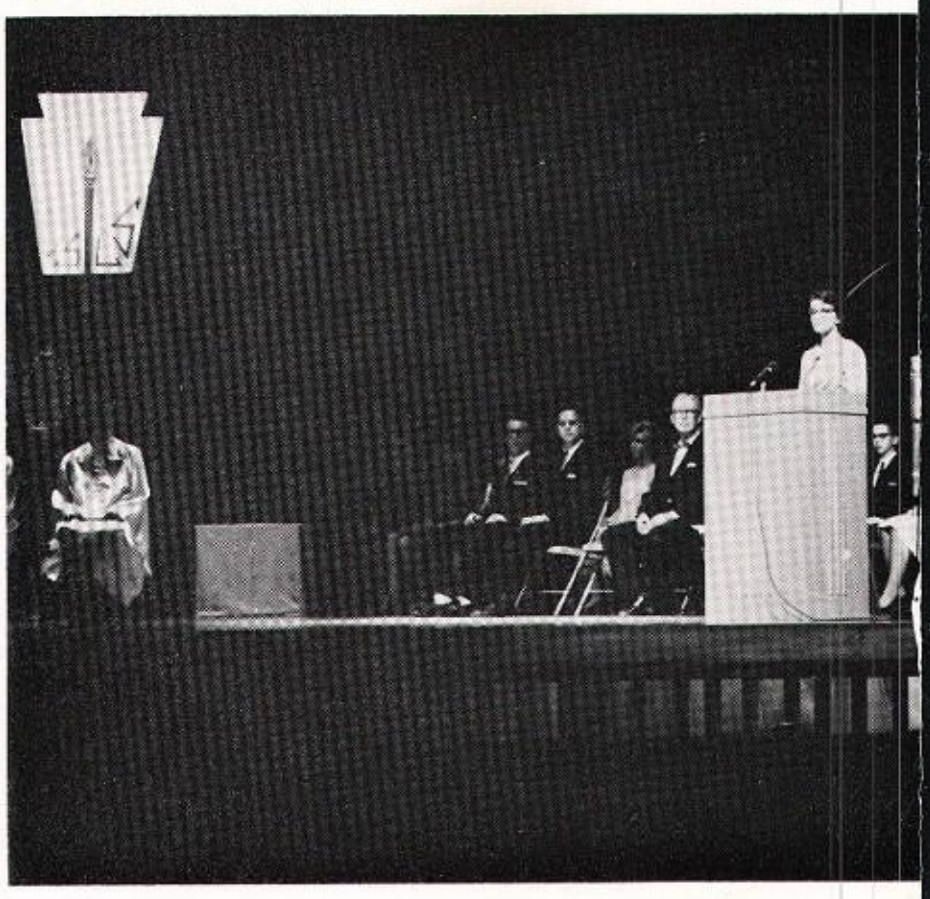
Pacing the way for Northwest was not all work, but many times fun, for busy Pioneers. Special events dotted the NHS calendar in '65. These events ranged from pep sessions and dances to the musical production of "Brigadoon" and a concert presented by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra. In all cases, we tried to make these special events rousing successes.

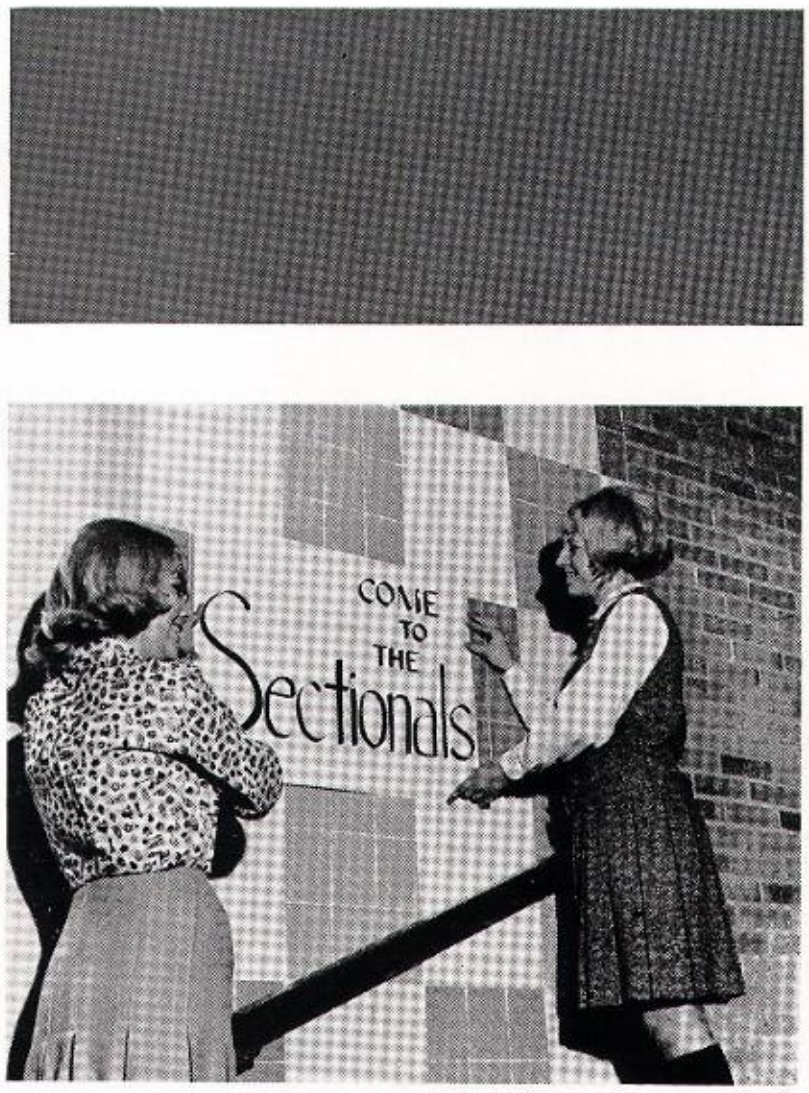
Friday night dances were a climax to all home basketball games. Each dance was sponsored by a school club or organization.

Crowds of Pioneers gathered in the gym at several pep sessions.

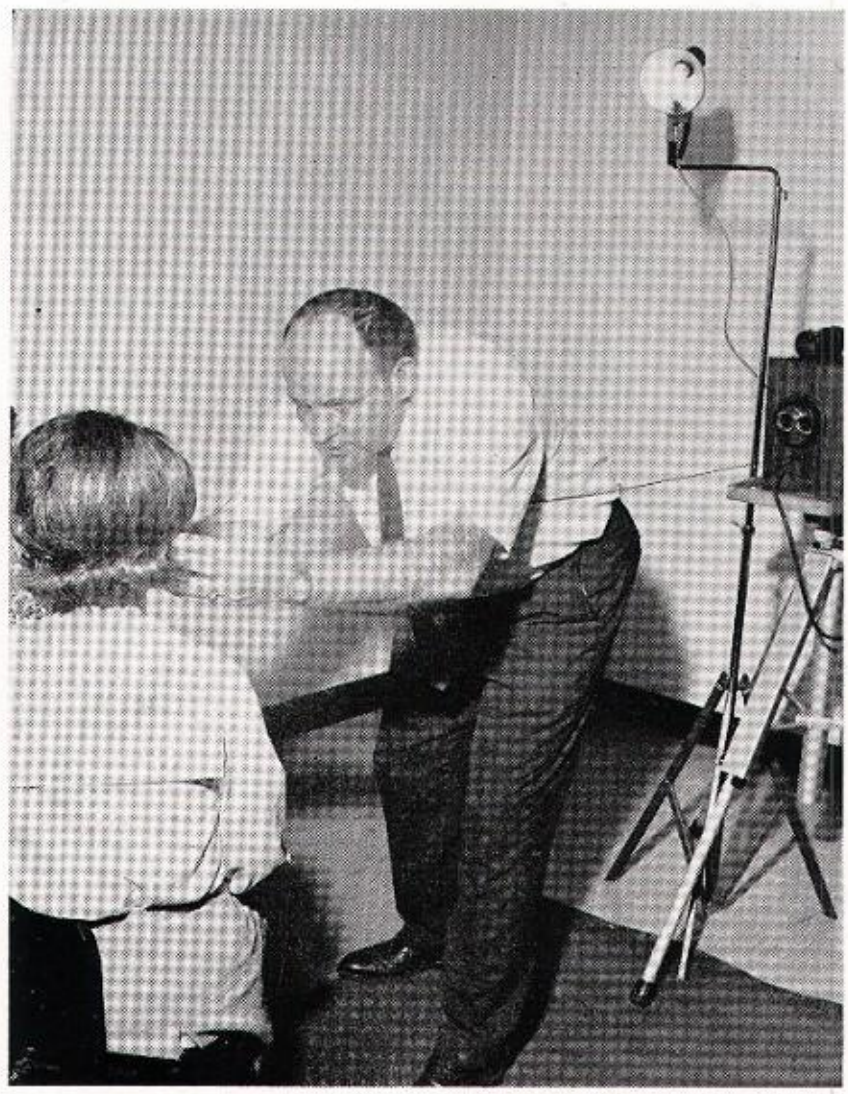
New green and silver robes were displayed by the Northwest choir at a special all-school Christmas assembly.

Our first National Honor Society was initiated in May of 1963. Thirty-three students became charter members of the chapter.





Bonnie Kilgore and Marcia Vollmar take note of the beginning of tourney time. Many loyal Pioneers backed their team.



Underclass picture sales held in November and then in January gave students a chance to buy and trade their 'prize possessions.'

The nominating convention added to the mock election during the history department's election unit as 326 students participated in election processes.

Adult world invaded By growing Pioneers

The Northwest Parent-Teachers and the Student Council were busy throughout the year with fund-raising projects to support special projects.

Members of NPT spent time with our marching band in their campaign for uniforms. On two Saturdays in October the band, Silverettes, and members of NPT marched on residential streets in the Northwest area. As the band played, the Silverettes went from door to door collecting donations and distributing "Honorary Member" stickers. On the NPT sponsored Sports Night the community was invited to come see the Varsity vs the seniors and the Dad's team give the teachers a run for their money. During December the NPT sold Christmas place settings.

While Christmas cheer was spreading outside the school, the Student Council dug into its pocket to bring Christmas in — in the form of a big, bushy evergreen to brighten the halls for the holiday season, thus adding a special touch.

Nancy Guerra typifies one of many NHS students who work to help meet expenses that active students often have.

Standing tall was no problem for 6'6" senior John Graves. Cap and gown measurements made graduation more of a reality.

Culture envelopes NHS As plays are produced

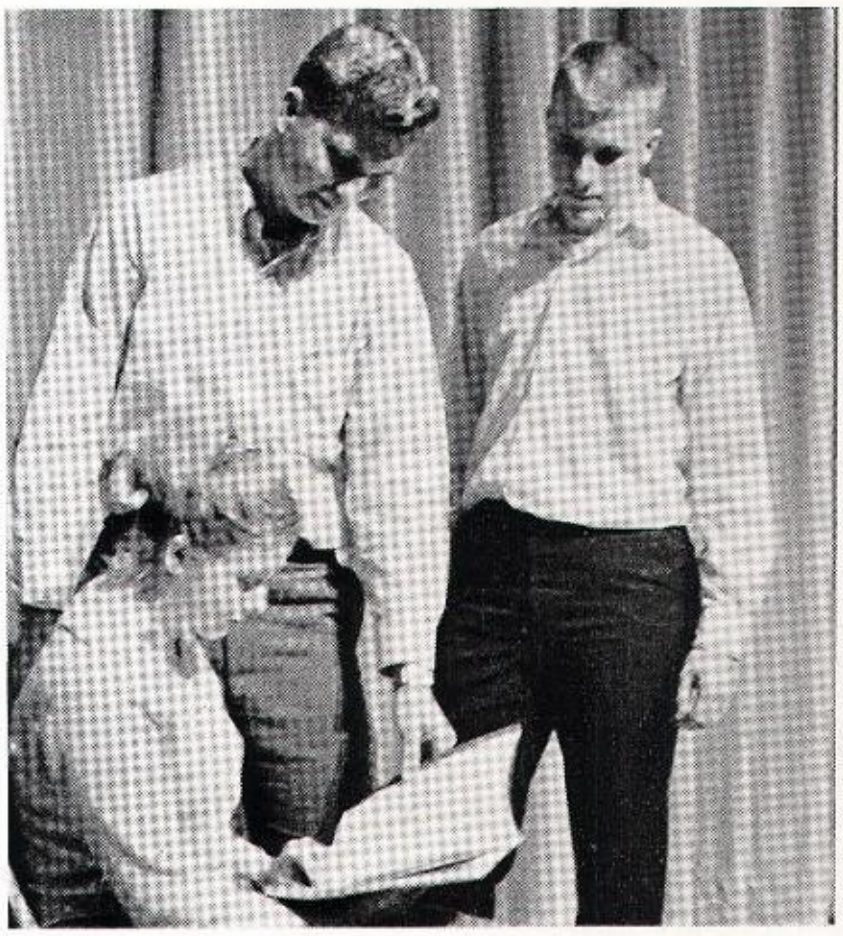
This year at Northwest teachers and pupils alike worked to gain accreditation by the North Central Association of Secondary Schools. This meant a complete evaluation of the school and all its phases by the teachers. At the close of these months of evaluation the student body and faculty crowded into the auditorium to meet a 13 member NCA team and to learn exactly what the accreditation entailed. For two days following the assembly the visitors toured the school and observed classes. In March Northwest was notified of its First Class high school certification.

A bit of imagination, four chairs, and four passengers produced an imaginary car for one of the November one-acts.

Jane Kitterman, Tami Lane, and Cassandra Keeley, stage craft workers for Brigadoon, found that behind the scenes work was a necessity for all plans to be carried out for opening night.

Isler Solomon is director of Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, which performed for Northwest students in January.

Stage craft class members also worked on the Spring Play, "Teahouse of the August Moon."



Practice makes perfect for serious minded cast members, Sue Zigler, Nick Herron, and Mike Galloway.

A Northwest first was the dramatics department's first play presented in May of '64. The all school play was—"Our Town".

Couples danced through a tropical fantasy of a "Wonderland by Night" at the finale of their junior year.

Year's plans, hopes Create wonderland

With a volcano adding splendor to a Hawaiian setting, the juniors of "64" danced to the music of the Arlington Dance Band at the first Northwest Junior Prom. The theme "Wonderland by Night" was voted on by the juniors and preparations were begun in January for the Prom.

Well before that special night, the junior class chose four couples to vie for the title of first Junior Prom King and Queen. On Prom night Joyce Beavers and Ollie Matthews reigned while the other three couples made up their court.

The Junior Prom court was made up of Bill Quade, Sue Pence, Bill Hedges, Nancy McFall, Joyce Beavers, queen; Ollie Matthews, king; Marcia Cody and Harold Ballard.

Dream of royal crown Spotlights NHS dances

At the climax of the yearbook sales campaign, the Vanguard staff had a Silver Leaves Dance. Decorations featured, naturally, were silver leaves. Lorrie Sands and Dennis Turner were chosen to reign. Other NHS queens include: Donna Lively who was chosen to represent NHS as Yards-Parks queen last spring. Joyce Beavers was elected this year's Jamboree Queen and Princess of Light.

Pep sessions are an extra, yet essential, part of school life. They bolster the spirit of the team and the students. Our pep sessions conducted in the gym, featured cheers, songs by the band, and speeches from the coaches.

Planning committees for the 2nd annual 500 Spinout began in March. Vanguard staff members worked to make this another pacesetter in '65.

The NPT sponsored dances were reigned over by Tami Lane and Harrold Ballard, queen and king of the Mall.

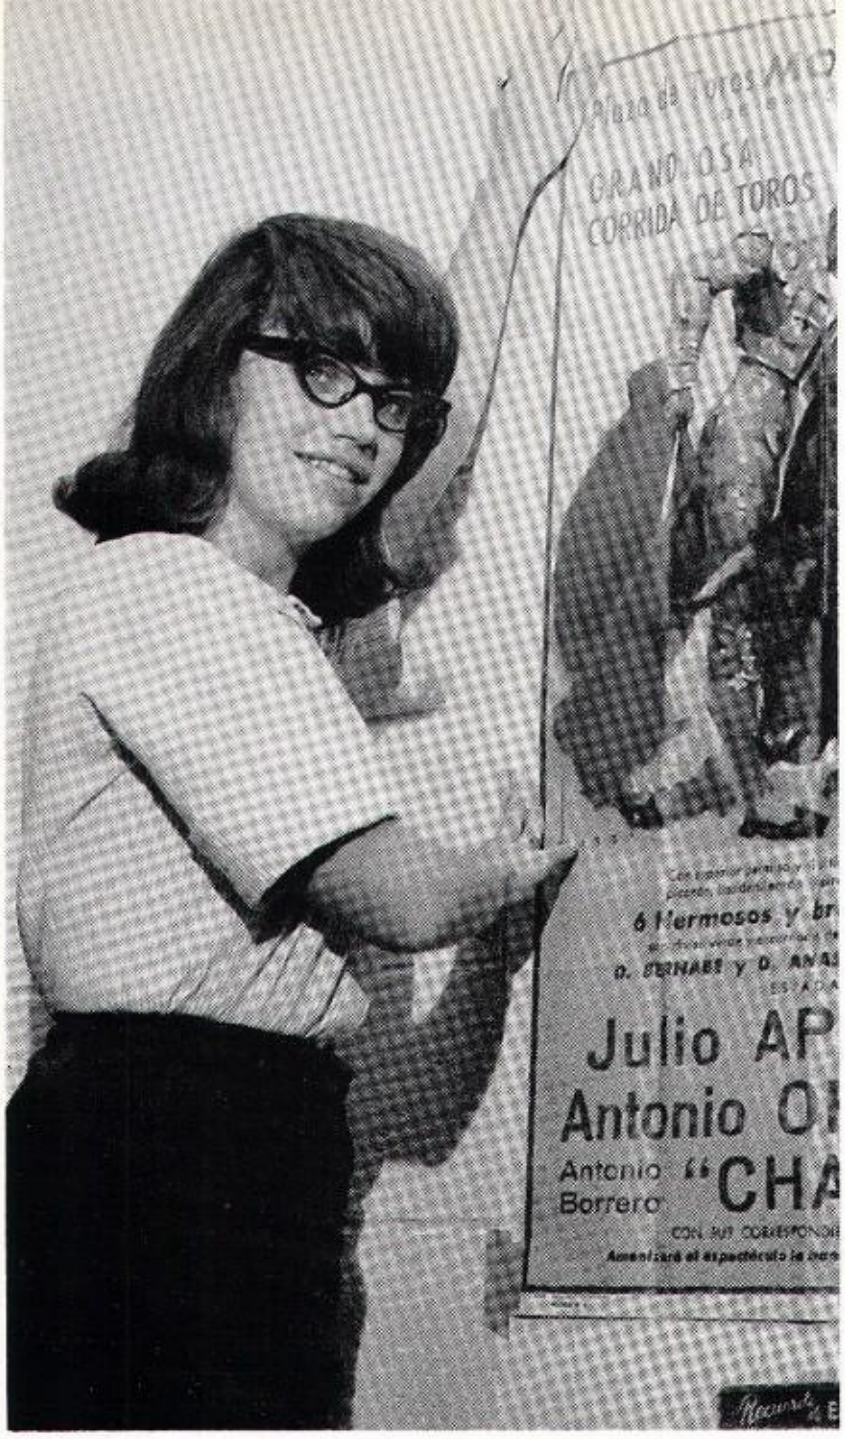
Special programs, events Add zest to routines

No week was complete at Northwest without a special program to add fun to NHS life.

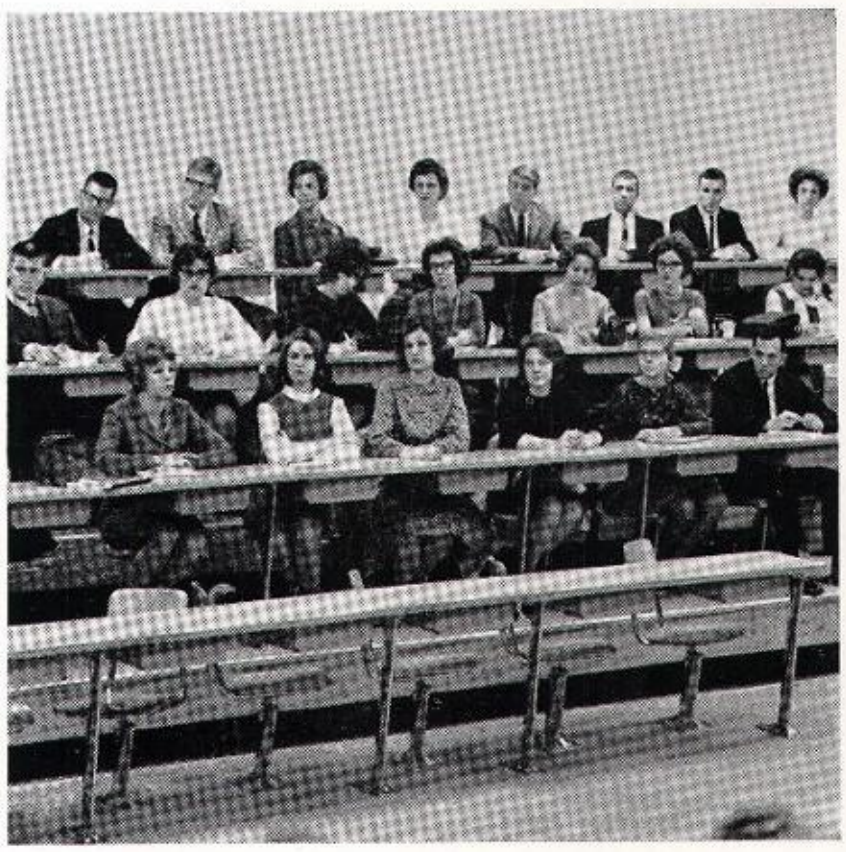
Music festivals gave the choir a chance to display their new robes as well as the talents of the whole music department.

"Teahouse of the August Moon" and "Brigadoon" were two of the several plays that dotted the NHS calendar, and school assemblies were frequent with topics ranging from patriotism to space development.

Good sportsmanship is re-emphasized each year at sectional time. Shortridges' Dave Moore talked at an assembly.

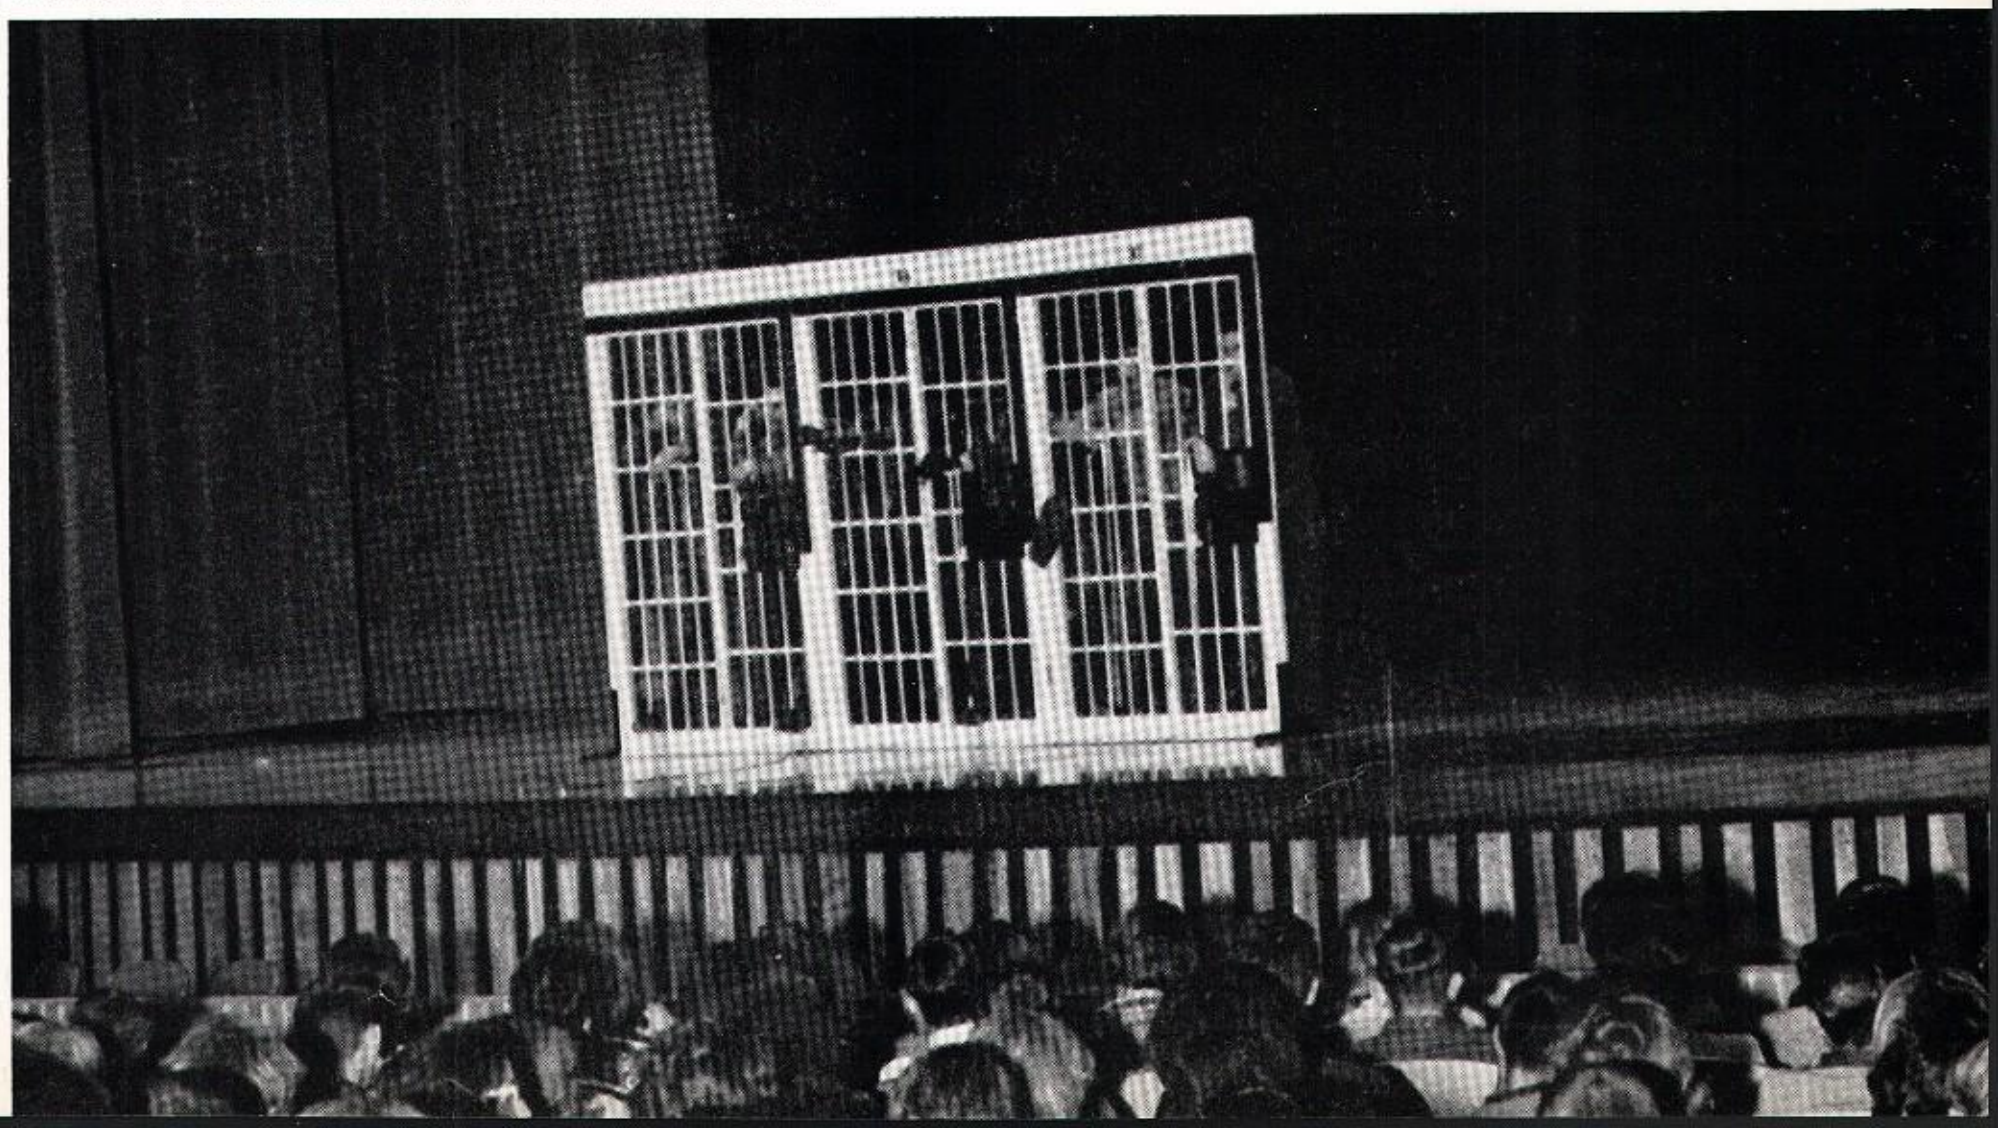


The International Club gained publicity as junior Sharon Davis displayed a Spanish poster.



The "learning" from the "learned" was a little hard to tell when some student teachers from Butler toured the Northwest facilities.

The six convicts from the Michigan City Prison told of their lives of crime and its rewards for a deeply impressed Pioneer assembly.



Outstanding NHS feats Recognized, appreciated

Many Pioneers stepped forward to receive assorted honors during the '64-'65 year.

These honors came in academics with Sertoma essays and homemaking abilities, in organizations with the National Honor Society and the first Quill and Scroll, and in athletics with cheerleading and cross-country city championships.

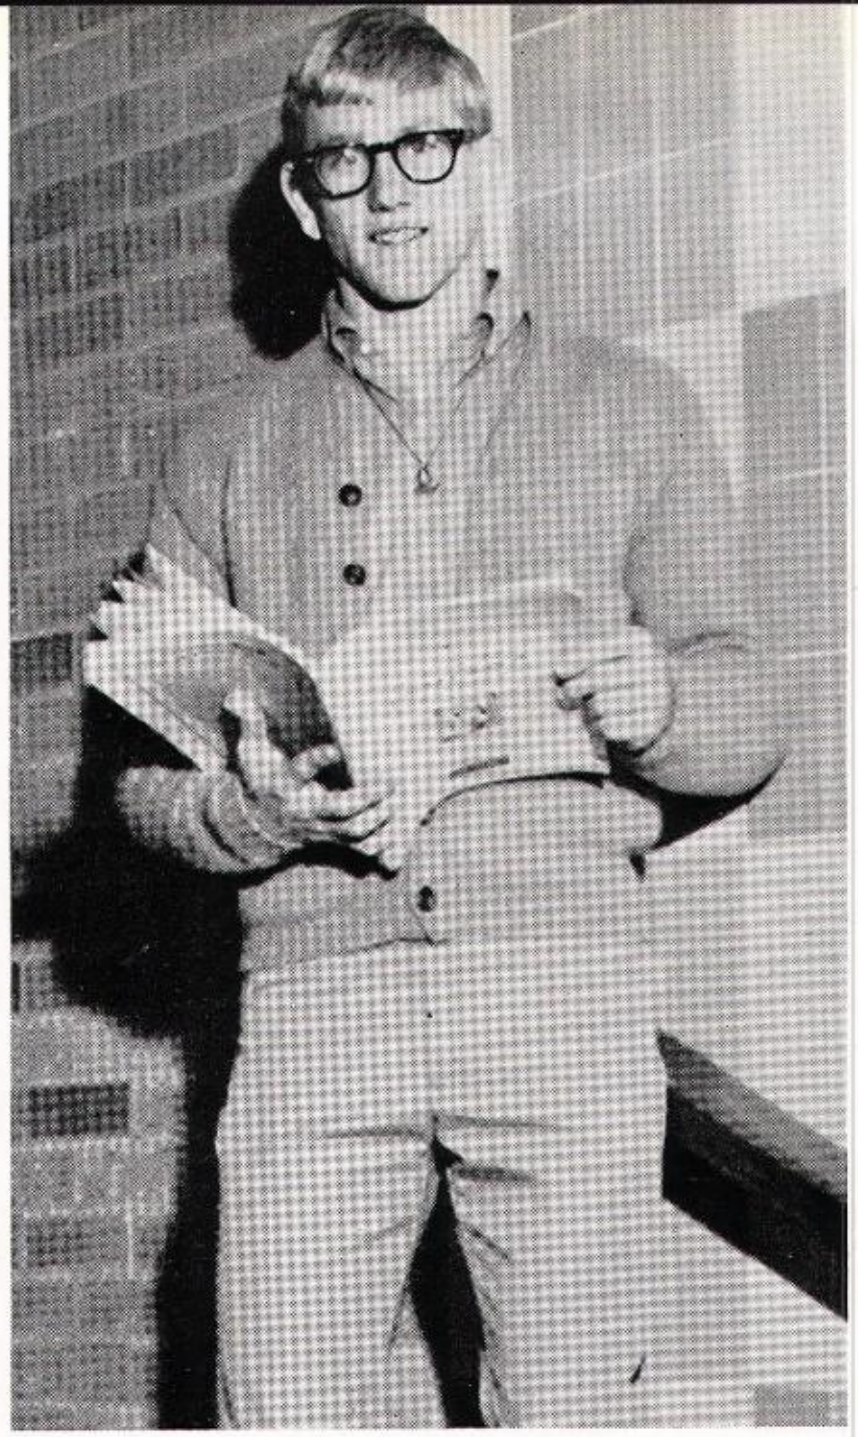
These and other honors helped to make Northwest and Pioneers honorary pace setters.

Fall Kiwanis Award winners were Nancy McFall, Bill Quade, Ollie Matthews, and Mike Basore. Students were recognized for active participation in extra curricular activities.

Janet Blessing, senior, earned the title of Homemaker of the Year at NHS and then went on to the state-wide competition.

Gold Key Award winners in the scholastic Art Contest were Mary Dyke, Tom Johnson, and Sue Zigler. The competition was city-wide.

Seniors Jody Allemenos and Marilyn Off and Junior Sherri Leonard attended the I. U. Journalism Institute during the summer.



Jim Downing, senior, hit the government books for a week this summer as NHS' representative to Boy's State.

Student Council president, Jim Dinninger, and vice-president Trudy Wher attended the Student Council Workshop at I.U.

Summer Institutes Visited by Pioneers

Through the summer as well as the winter months, NHSers participated in extra-special activities. During the summer, several students attended school-linked programs at various colleges in Indiana. Northwest was represented at the Student Council and Journalism Workshops at Indiana University in July. The first two weeks of the Journalism workshop were concerned with newspapers and the last two weeks treated yearbook publication. Jim Downing studied social studies and government as our delegate to Boys' State, Indiana University, this summer. NHS was represented for the first time at the Social Studies Institute at I.U. Our cheerleaders attended Smith-Walbridge Camp to learn new methods of cheering. While there, they won a third place ribbon in competition. Some of our majorettes also represented NHS at the camp during the Majorette and Twirler Conferences.

During the school year, twenty journalism students attended Press Day at Arlington High School to learn fundamentals in newspaper and yearbook writing.

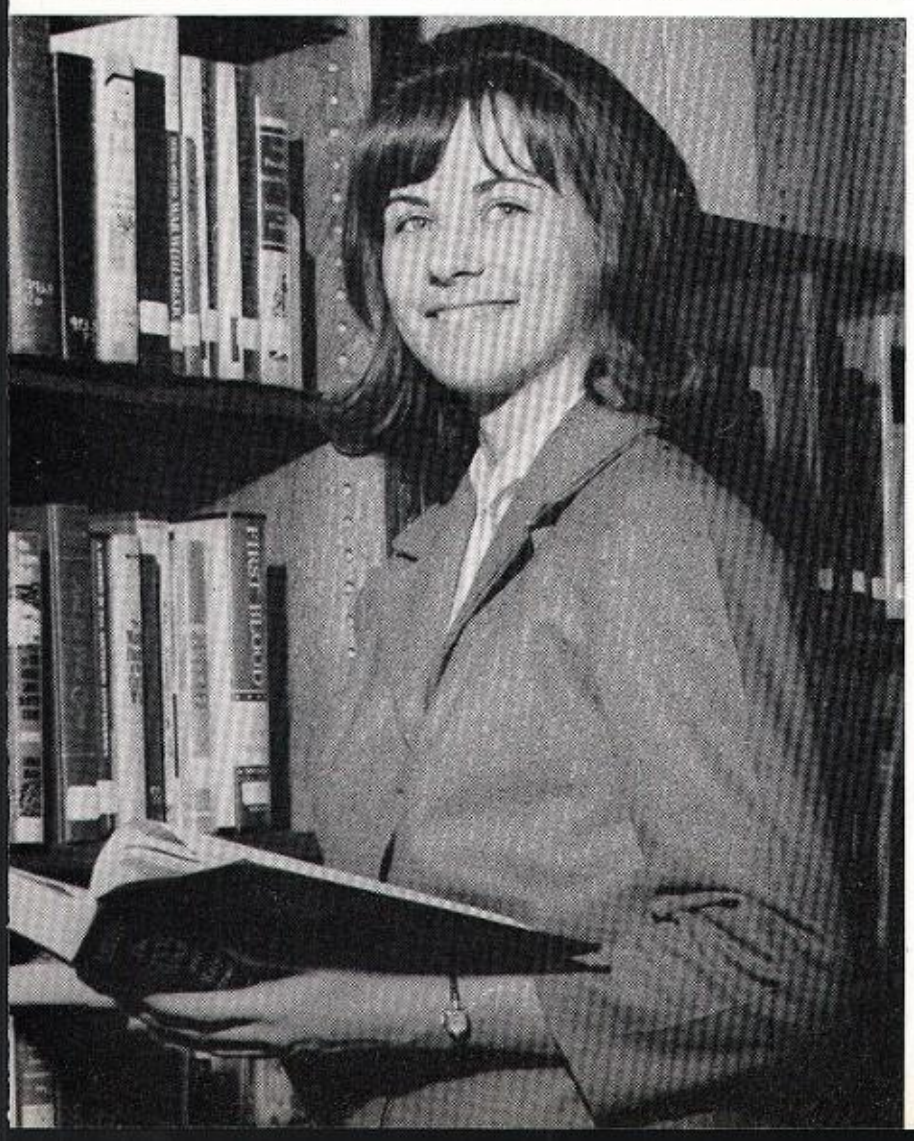
Select Pioneers bring NHS to public light

Northwest students were active this year in civic affairs. Two of our seniors, Kathy Bartels and Katrina Shipley, in company with students from several other city high schools, visited Governor Matthew Welsh to interview and chat with him.

On November 13, the Optimist Club sponsored a Youth Achievement day. On this day, students from city high schools took over civic duties. Kathy Bartels and Dennis Harrold were given the jobs of director and controller at Weir Cook Airport. They toured the airport, including the control tower, an airplane, and the place where flights are scheduled and flight plans are made.

Kathy Bartels and Dennis Harrold tell Mr. Smartz of their experiences visiting Weir Cook Airport.

National Merit Scholarship finalist Kathy Bartels was the first student to bring one of the greatest scholastic honors to NHS.

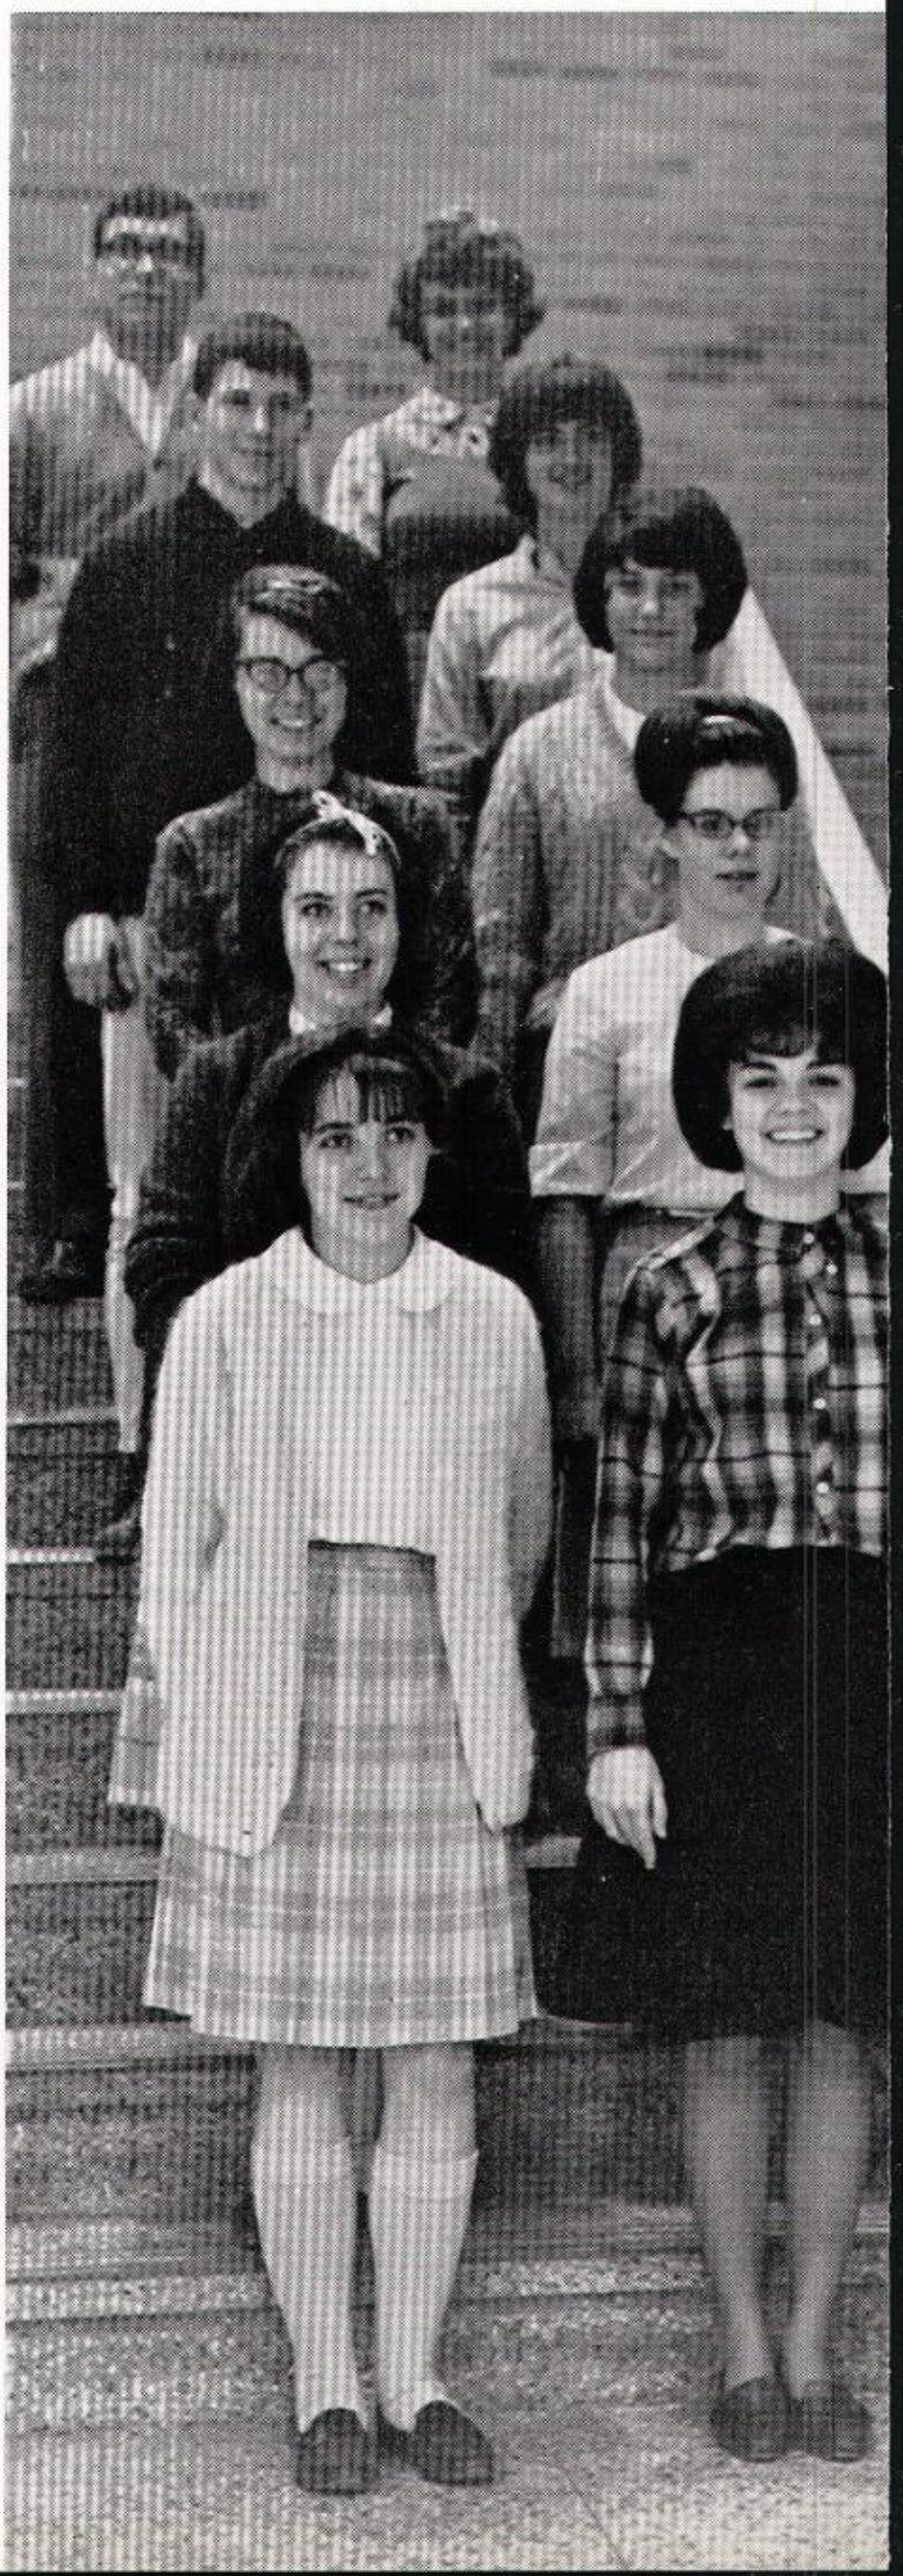


Careers, sportmanship Help Pioneer mature

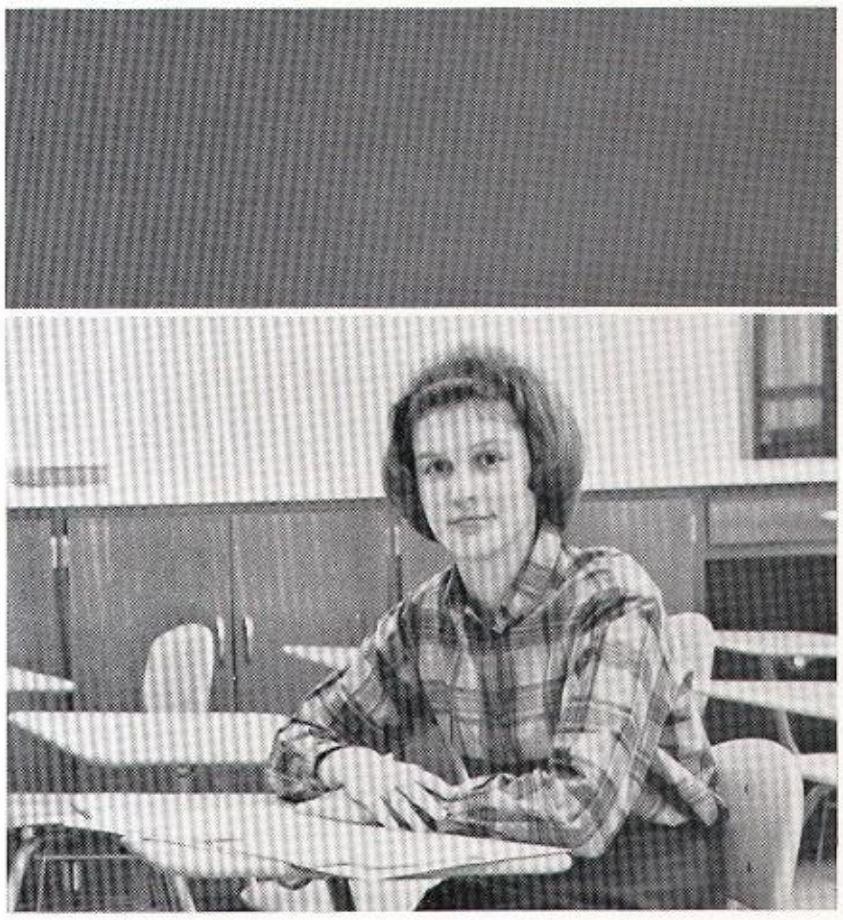
A Northwest student panel appeared on television to discuss Sophocles' Oedipus Rex, which they had been studying in English at the time. This panel was made up from seniors chosen by the English department. Also several pupils qualified to take part in the Exercise in Knowledge panel which appeared on television.

Boys and Girls State members for '65 were chosen from: C. Wilson, L. Switzer, E. Albro, L. Taylor, S. Grider, T. Lane, K. Abbott, S. Cox, M. Godan, and S. Leonard.

Intra-City Council members were Marcia Stephanoff, Mary Jane Harrington, and Sue Pence.

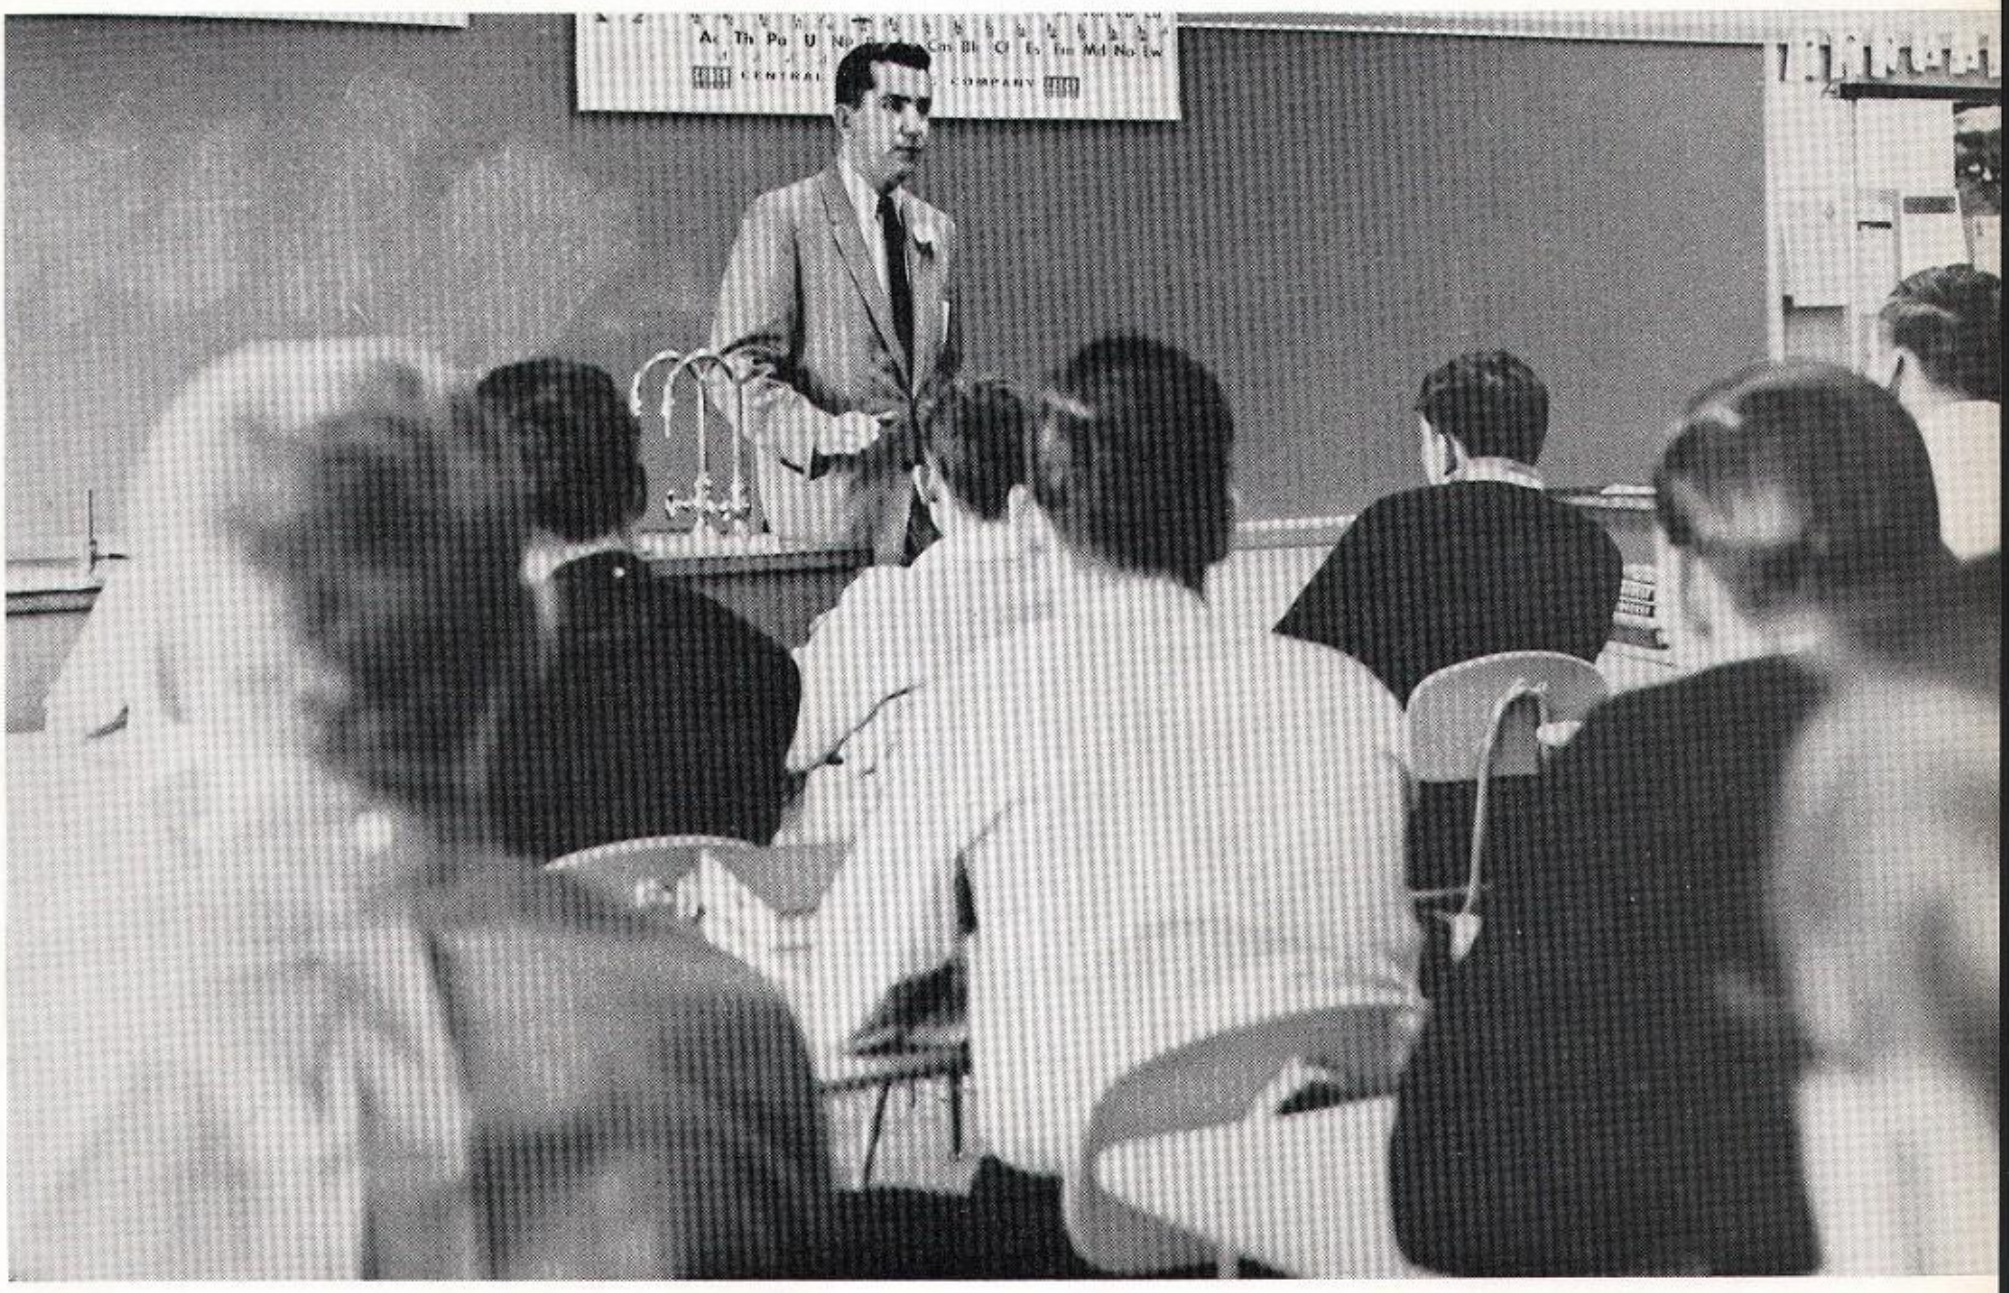


Problems are a specialty for Joe Revell and June Scott, Northwest's two Math Institute members.



Marcia Stephanoff's sportsmanship slogan won the right to hang at Butler during the '65 Basketball Sectional.

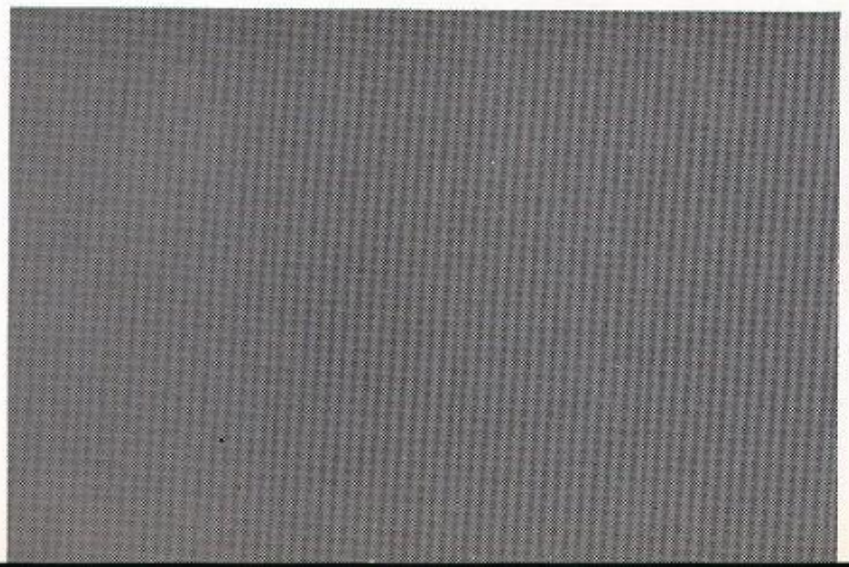
Career's day gave Pioneers a chance to attend sessions on future occupations, and to ask questions about the career of their choice.



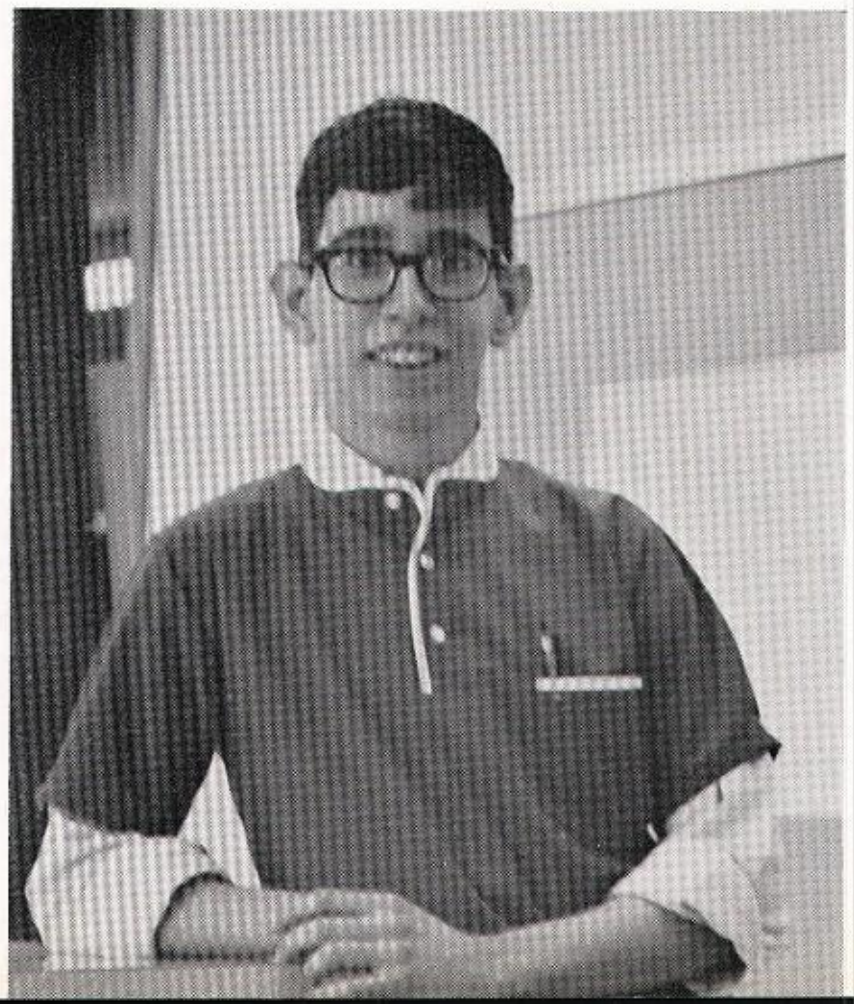
National Honor Society served as ushers for Career's Day, College Day, and the two performances of the first musical Brigadoon. The 33 members performed various other school services throughout the year.

As abilities increase Awards adorn NHS

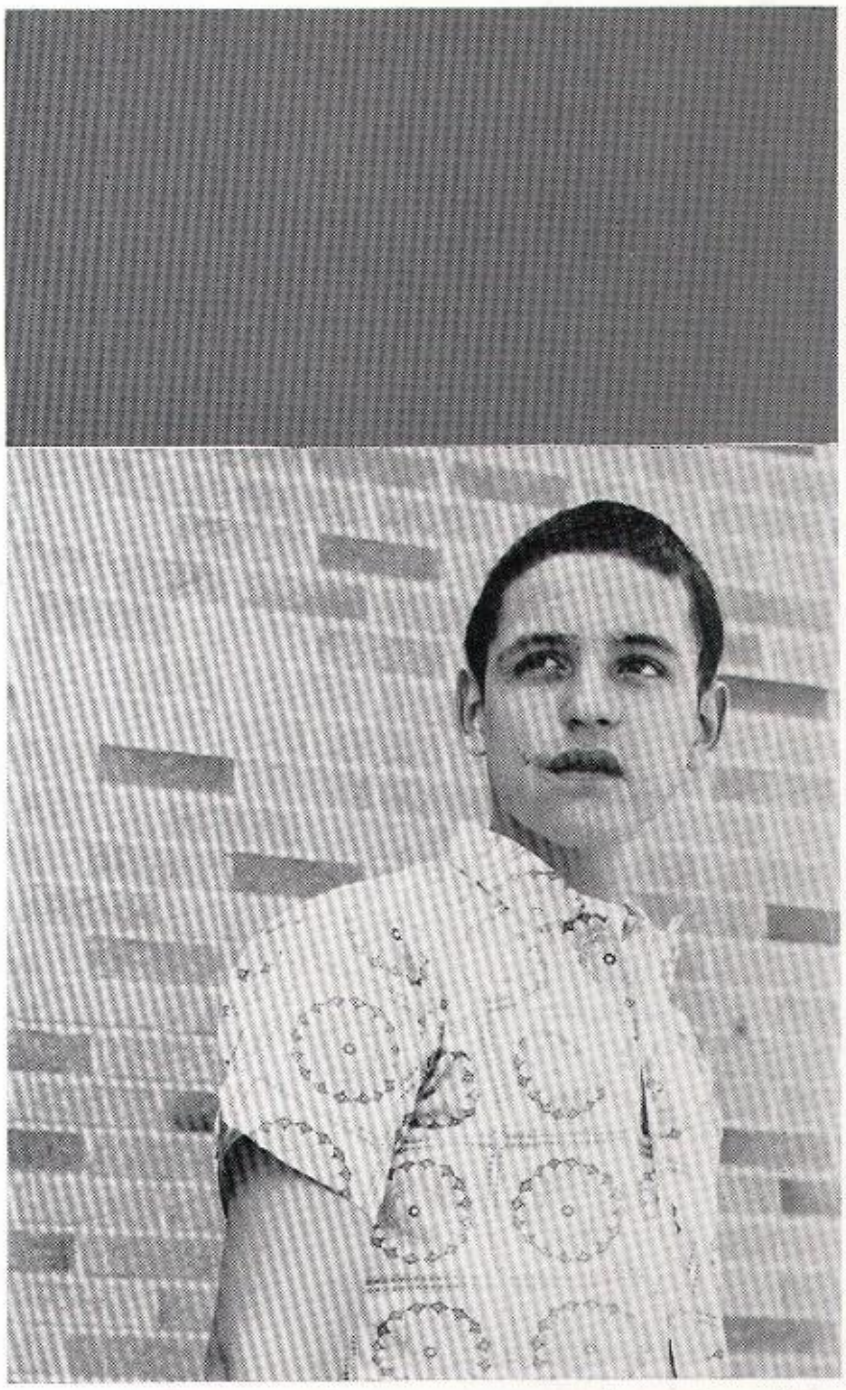
David Wortman was a finalist for the Bausch-Lomb scholarship in science for Rochester University in Rochester, New York. Eight seniors wrote research papers dealing with one of the social studies in competition for the $1000 and $500 Lilly Endowment scholarships offered to Northwest this year.



Sertoma contest winner Jose Sanchez won a fifty dollar Savings Bond as his first place award over students in 3 other schools.



David Wortman, of the first graduating class, was a finalist in the Bausch-Lomb Science Competition for Rochester University.



Outstanding citizen, Joe Pearson, a junior and a varsity athlete, was the recipient of the DAR award for good sportsmanship.

Katrina Shipley and Kathy Bartels were NHS' representatives to attend a high school meeting with past Governor Matthew Welsh.

Extra-curricular bustle, hurry, whirl Attracts Pioneers excess time, energy

Extra-curricular activities at NHS range from the Conservation Club to the Lettermen's Club. The clubs this year grew, and the interests and membership of each club increased. New clubs were formed and they offered even more opportunity for fun and knowledge.

There were approximately 361 Pioneers enrolled in seventeen clubs at NHS. Many clubs and organizations participated in city wide activities and helped set the pace for all the city high schools as well as for NHS.

The parades, club sponsored school dances, plays, and dinners afforded the chance for clubs to make themselves known to all Pioneers. Yes, this year Northwest truly set the pace in activities.

Honor pupils selected For society's initiation

National Honor Society is Northwest's honorary organization for the top 15% of the school's scholastically minded juniors and seniors. Its purpose is to give recognition to students who are superior academically and who serve the school willingly. Members must also possess admirable characteristics and be school leaders. The first induction of members into the National Honor Society was May of 1964. At this time thirty-three students became charter members.

The organization served as guide at Open House in November. Installing new members into its group this spring were officers Jim Downing, president; Dwight Klippel, vice-president; Donna Lively, secretary; and Mike Shanahan, treasurer.

Presiding over the National Honor Society were Mike Shanahan, Dwight Klippel, Jim Downing, President, and Donna Lively.

National Honor Society activities are planned by Janet Blessing, Donna Lively, Marsha Kriegbaum, Mrs. Winter and Marcia Cody.

Three editors Dennis Harrold, Jody Allemenos, Ollie Matthews were elected into NHS's first Quill and Scroll.

Staffs form Honorary For eager journalists

Quill and Scroll was organized to recognize and reward ability and achievement in writing and other phases of journalistic work in high school.

The purpose of Quill and Scroll is to instill into students the idea of scholarship, to advance the standards of the profession of journalism by developing better journalists, to strive for a higher code of ethics, to promote exact thinking, and to promote clear and forceful writing.

Recognition of journalists which will be given annually was begun this year. Quill and Scroll charter chapter members were selected at the first initiation on April 22, 1965. The chapter was installed by the Arlington High School Quill and Scroll Society.

Nine members signed the Quill and Scroll charter. The members are Joan Allemenos, Dennis Harrold, Ollie Matthews, Cooki Vollmar, Shari Waggoner, Sandy Keeley, Nancy McFall, Sandy Davis and Sherri Leonard.

Orchestra performs For varied activities

Sounds of music fill the auditorium as thirty Pioneers combine their efforts under the direction of Dr. Samuel Siurua. This music group has played for Northwest's first musical, Brigadoon, the Christmas program, an all-school concert, and contests. The orchestra is divided into sections of fifteen string players and fifteen woodwind players. The wind players are also members of the band.

Five members of the orchestra were selected for the honor of playing with the All-State High School Orchestra.

Concert performances require extra practices. Dr. Siurua leads the orchestra in a number for an upcoming concert.

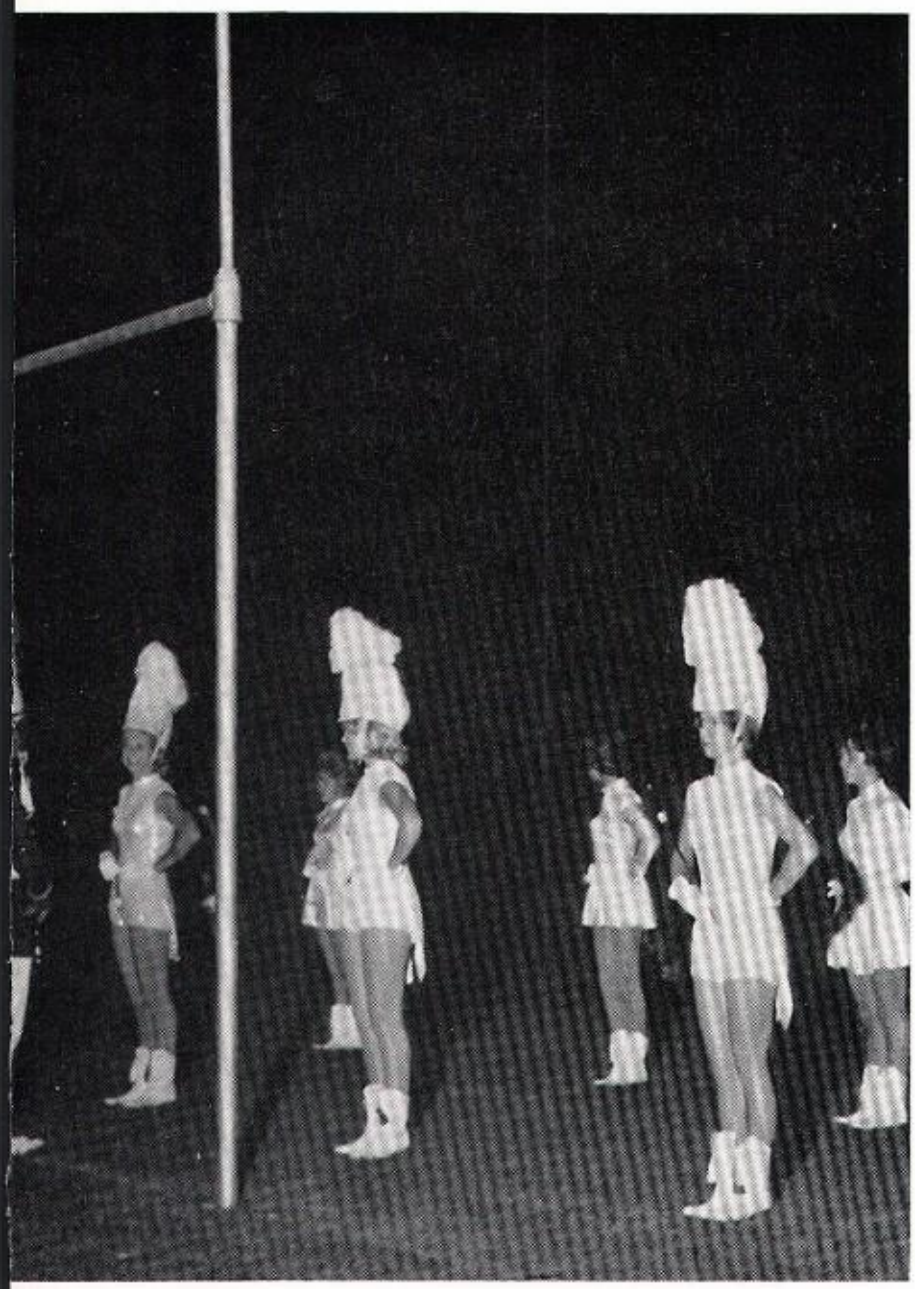
Instrumentalists improve their talent with patience and practice. Many students use study hall time to use music study rooms.

Drum major directs Band at home games

Marching Pioneers had a busy year in 1964-65. The city-wide Jamboree, held in September, 1964, was the beginning of the marching season for the band. Our band, along with other city bands entertained in the Jamboree with a halftime show spotlighting state fairs.

Marching Pioneers performed at all home football games with shows demonstrating precision marching, dance routines, and varied types of music.

Senior drum major Mike Basore led the marching Pioneers in their field maneuvers. He also led the band at the entertainment in the "Punt, Pass and Kick Contest" and the State Marching Band Contest at Southport in which the band won a first division rating.



The Marching Pioneers strut into field formation before presenting their half-time program to Pioneers at a home football game.

The NHS Pep Band performed at all home basketball games. Members were in Marching Pioneers during regular season.

Band concerts proof Of practice, skill

Northwest Concert Band had a busy season this year with two concerts and a contest.

A Christmas concert, which included all members of the music department, was the Northwest band's first concert appearance. On March 26th, the band gave a joint concert with the girls' vocal groups. Proceeds from this concert went into the band uniform fund.

This year, Northwest was host school for the Annual State Band Contest, April 3. Bands were requested to play required contest numbers, a selection of the band director's choice, and a sight reading selection.

Adding a spirited touch to Northwest home basketball games was the Pioneer pep band which was composed of twenty members of the regular concert band. These students played between game quarters and at the halftime. The pep band provided marching music for the Northwest Silverettes during their halftime shows. Our new school song was made familiar to Northwest students through the pep band which played the song several times a game.

Perfection of cheers Requires hard work

Among the most active of the activities is cheerleading. The squad is composed of five varsity, six junior varsity and four freshman cheerleaders. All cheerleaders attended the Eighteenth Annual High School Cheerleaders Conference at Indiana University in November.

Cheerleaders are an important part of every school. Their function is to promote the school spirit necessary for the team and the school. Also, the girls must set good examples in sportsmanship for the entire school. At the same time, each girl must maintain average or above-average grades in all subjects.

The rewards of physical fitness along with the warm feeling of helping your team and your school are a few benefits of the hours spent practicing and performing. To buy uniforms and other equipment they sponsored several after game dances.

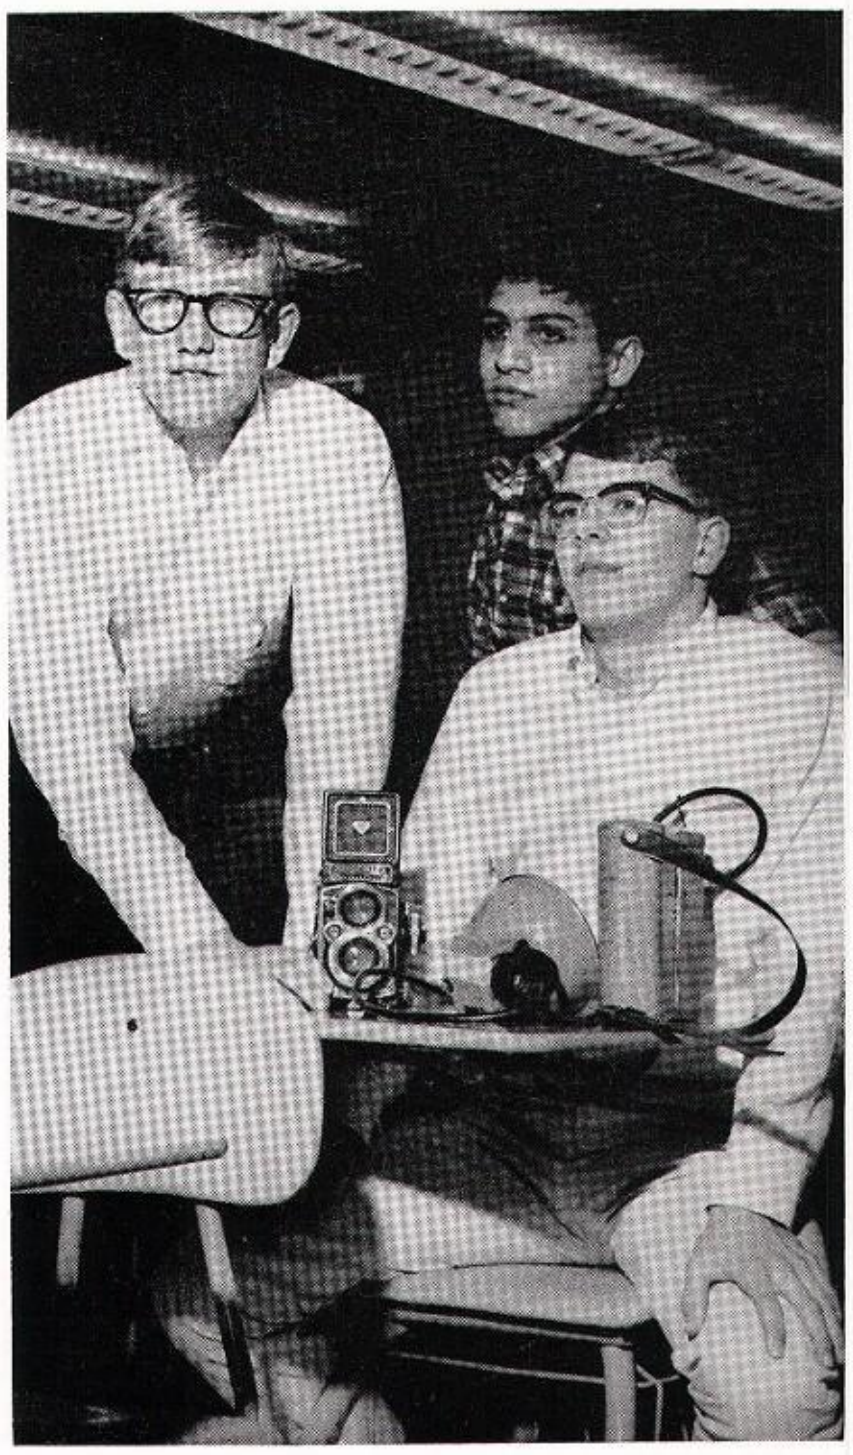
Offset press offers Newly styled Telstar

Alternating Fridays were the deadlines for various reporters and editors of the Telstar and for each issue it seemed as though that day came faster and faster. Many new reporters for the paper found it necessary to familiarize themselves with a new vocabulary of such words as lead out, and beat assignment.

For the first time, the school newspaper was printed within the school. The print shop burned photograph negatives onto a sensitized aluminum alloy plate and used this plate to print the paper. The biweekly publication kept everyone informed about the latest school news, sports, and social events.

Alternating editors of Telstar were Jody Allemenos and Marilyn Off, both seniors. Each girl worked as editor for one semester.

Telstar and Vanguard photographers were Jim Downing, George Allemenos and Mike McFarling.



Looking at this year's dummy are co editors-in-chief of the Vanguard, seniors Dennis Harrold and Sandi Weaver.

Vanguard summarizes Second year events

Brains behind the scenes . . . Members of the publications department have worked since last May preparing the 1965 Vanguard. Co-editors Sandi Weaver and Dennis Harrold guided the staff in its effort to do a good job collecting pictures, captions, activities and headlines that were necessary for the book.

The staff was divided into several groups, each under an editor. Each editor, one each for pictures, copy, activities, faculty, sports, album-index, and patrons was responsible for seeing that his staff met all deadlines and turned in good work. Vanguard staff members, besides putting out the book, held several dances to raise money for expenses involved in publishing a yearbook.

Leading the International Club were Jose Sanchez, Esther Hanig, R. Mormance, and C. Thompson.

History Club studies Statehood celebration

Indiana history and social sciences have been the topic of discussion for this year's History Club members. Since this year marks of the 150th year of statehood for Indiana, the club has studied state history thoroughly and sold license plates with a sesquicentennial theme as a profit-making campaign. History Club also participated in the Junior Historical Society Convention at Washington High School.

International Club has also studied history during the past year. However, the International Club studied the history, customs, culture and people of foreign lands. Using his own international background, president Jose Sanchez, from Cuba, was able to plan many interesting discussions.

Local industrial trips Encourage scientists

Science Club students put their interest and "know how" to use by taking on projects such as growing bacteria cultures and planning a space flight. Other activities included a field trip to the Butler Conservatory and visits to the Powerama, Eli Lilly, and Chicago.

Members of the Conservation Club found nature and its habitats very rewarding. The object of this club is to learn how to conserve natural resources such as plants, animals, man, and soil. Many students participated in the projects of the club, which included a trip to Brown County State Park.

Officers presiding at Science Club meetings were T. Balough, president, J. Townsend, vice-president, C. Myers, secretary, and R. Pickett, treasurer.

Career-minded girls Join nursing clubs

Red Cross has served the local community as well as the school in many ways during the past year. Besides the Enrollment Drive and Fund, the Red Cross Club has sewn towels and blankets which were distributed to agencies which help the needy. The fifteen members of the club celebrated their achievements with a banquet in the spring.

Future Nurses acquainted pupils with medicine and opportunities in the field of medicine. The eighteen members and Mrs. Lillian Resnick, club sponsor, learned by listening to guest speakers, by seeing films, and by performing practical work such as folding bandages. The officers of the Future Nurses Club were Ellen Albro, president; Dinah Smith, vice-president; Carol Wdowka, secretary; and Carol Potenza, treasurer.

Drama Club members Stage productions

Twenty-eight members of the Northwest student body compose the Dramatics Club. The Dramatics Club is a member of the Indiana High School Forensic Association and has participated in several extra-curricular speech contests.

Working with the music department, the Dramatics Club presented its first musical, Brigadoon, in March of 1965.

These junior thespians also exhibited their acting abilities in a group of one-act plays last November. Many students, though not interested in appearing on stage, have gained valuable experience in working with props and costumes backstage. A stage craft group was formed in January.

"Brigadoon", Northwest's first musical, was the showcase for many Drama Club members. The play concerned the people of a small Scotland town.

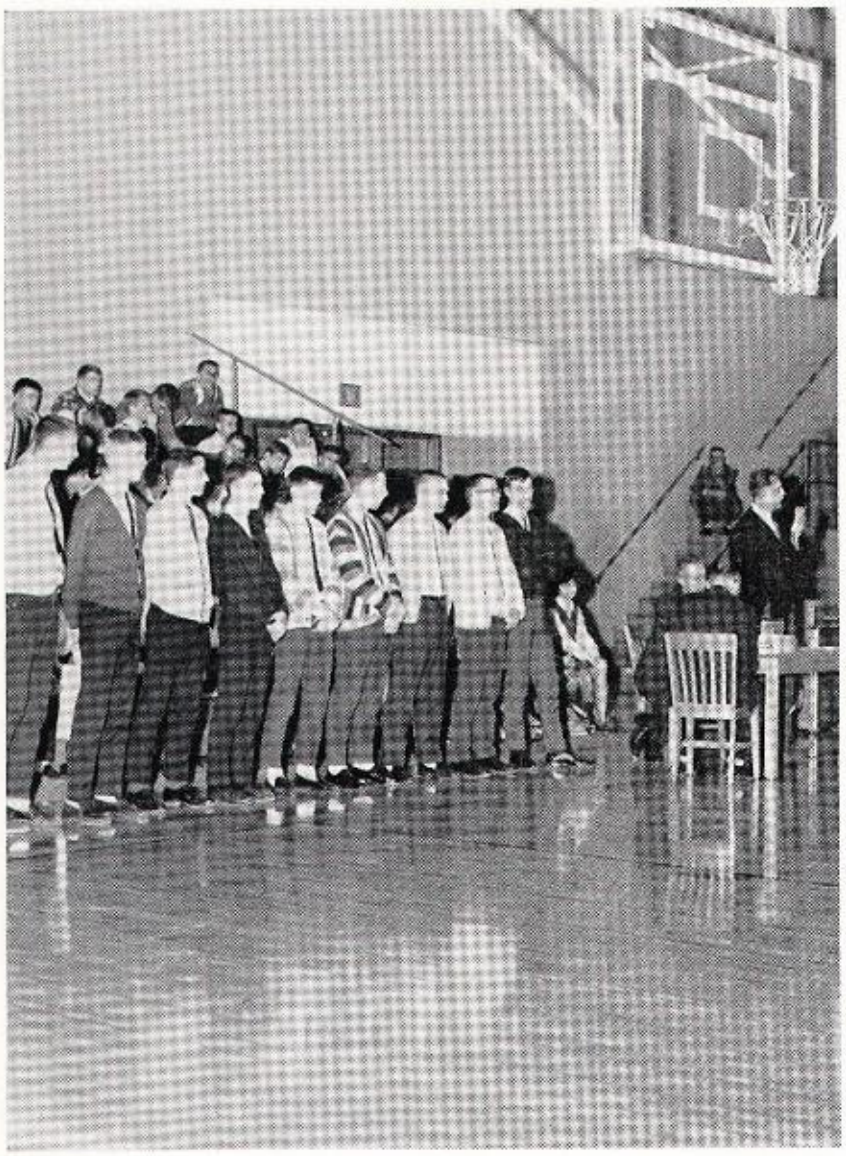
Cheerblock adds pep, Spirit to ball games

N.H.S. Cheerblock is a big help to cheerleaders and their vocal chords, especially when our fans seemed too intensely interested in the game to cry the familiar chants. The cheerblock leads the spectators in cheering and promotes good sportsmanship of fans. Members also encouraged school spirit. The six reserve, four freshman cheerleaders, Silverettes and pom pom girls, are members of the cheer block and often help out with the hand jives and other cheers familiar to all Pioneers.

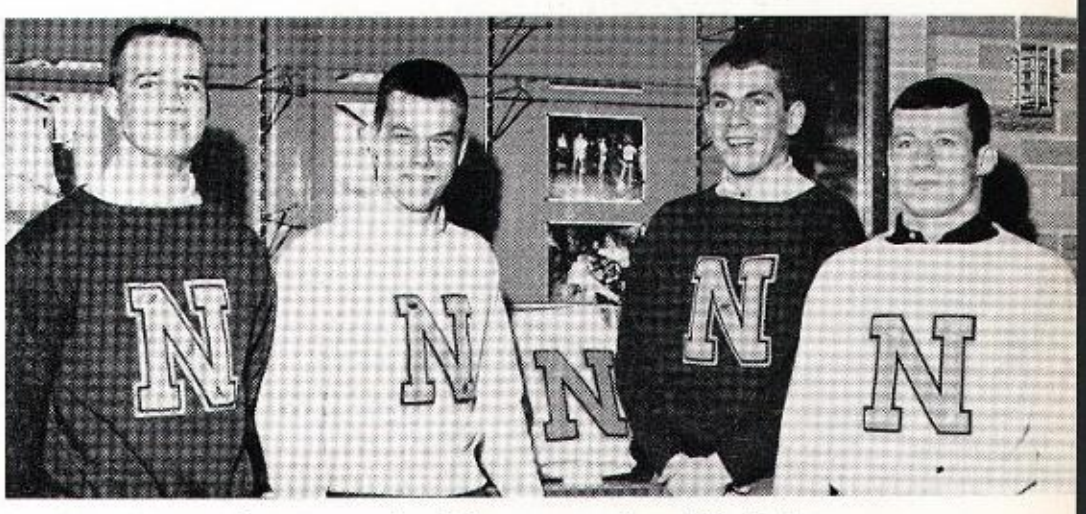
NHS Cheerblock was formed to cheer at home basketball games. Reserve cheerleaders joined the cheerblock during the games.

NHS Lettermen set Special occasions add

Setting standards in sportsmanship and participation in athletics is the responsibility of the Northwest Letterman's Club. It contains nearly 50 members and has been growing after each sports season. All boys in the club are letter winners in one or more sports. One of the club's activities was the sale of Booster Club memberships in the spring.



Winners of letters in two winter sports receive white letter sweaters. Tie clips and pins are also given as awards.



Leading this year's Letterman's club were seniors Bill Hedges, Bill Quade, Ollie Matthews, and Harry Ballard.

Pitting student minds against each other in battles of logic is the strategy of the Chess Club. The sixteen members of the club meet twice a month to play chess and discuss new strategy.

Members of the Amateur Radio Club interest themselves in all phases of electronics and communications. Among their studies are Morse Code and electric circuits. Their main project is to begin a radio station at Northwest.

Freshmen interested in Journalism can take advantage of the Cub Club and learn proofreading, photography, and other aspects of journalism which help them in later journalism activities.

FTA, cadet teaching Guide vocation choice

Several students at Northwest discovered that their interests lead to the field of education. Eager seniors found time in their schedules to enroll in Cadet teaching. In this class they were allowed to visit classes in local schoolrooms and help teachers and their pupils. Others, lacking schedule time, find that Future Teachers is an answer to their problem. All members in the club are interested in teaching secondary or elementary classes. During the year the club has been able to visit special schools for handicapped and blind children.

An afternoon tea was given in honor of students who were cadet teachers during the semester.

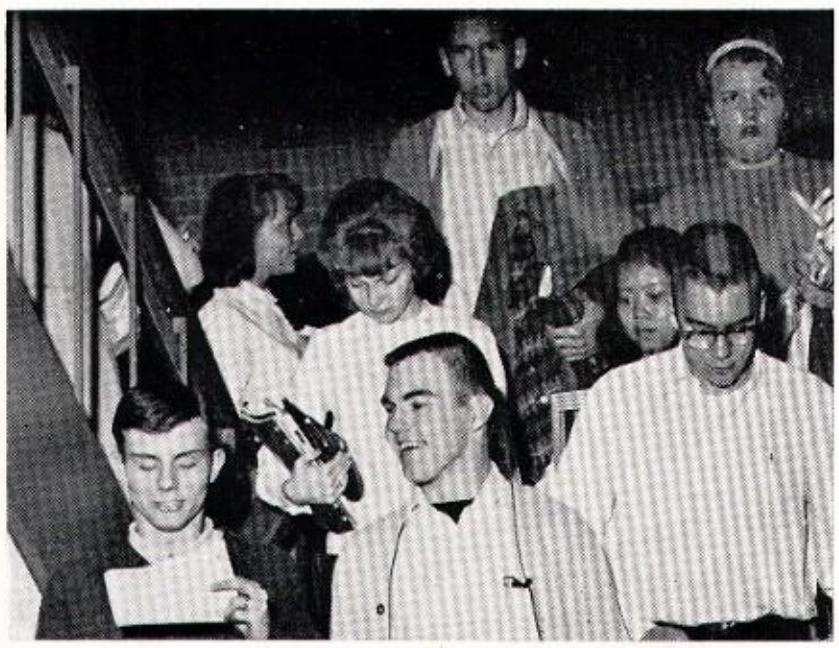
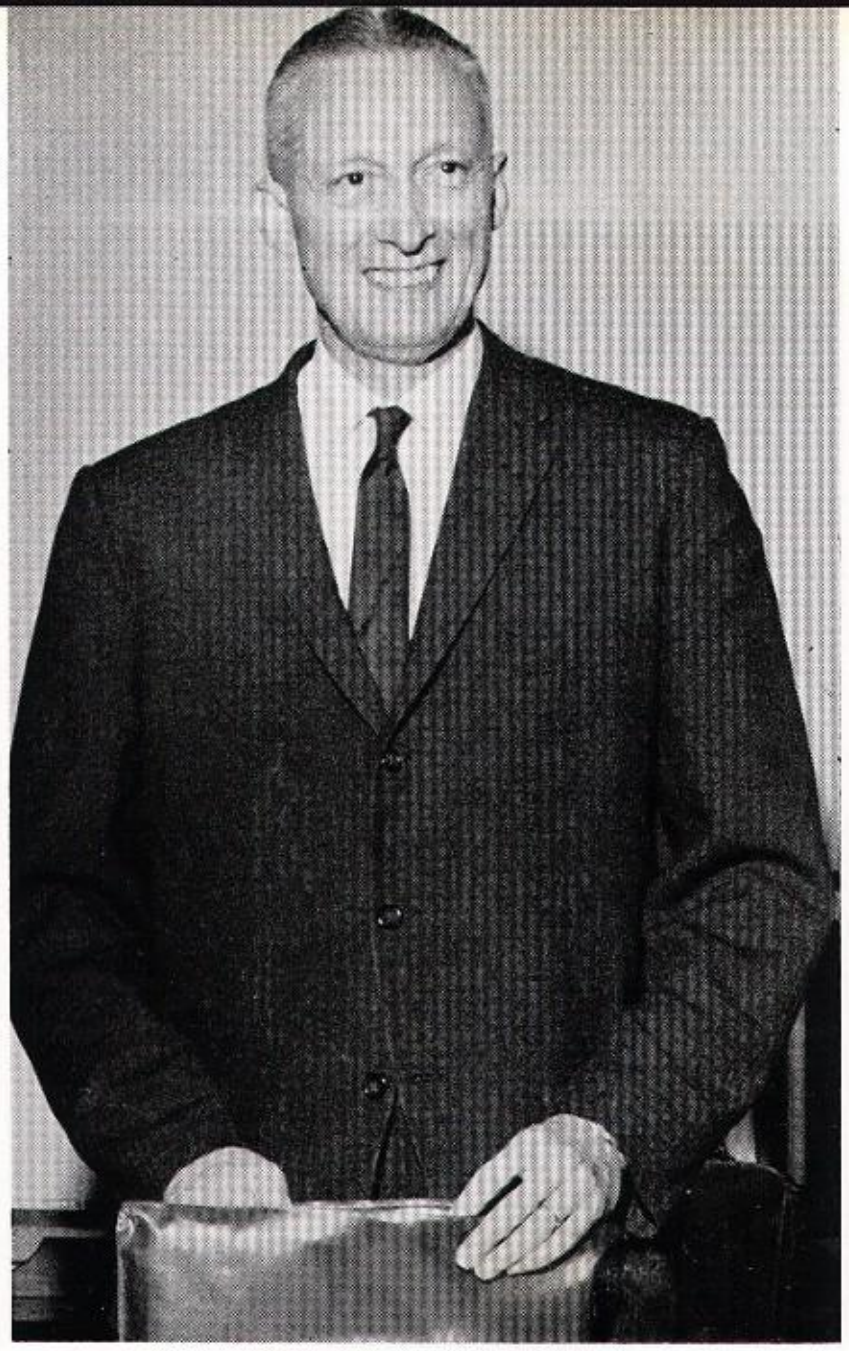
Individual participants create unique aura Filling Northwest with imagination, originality



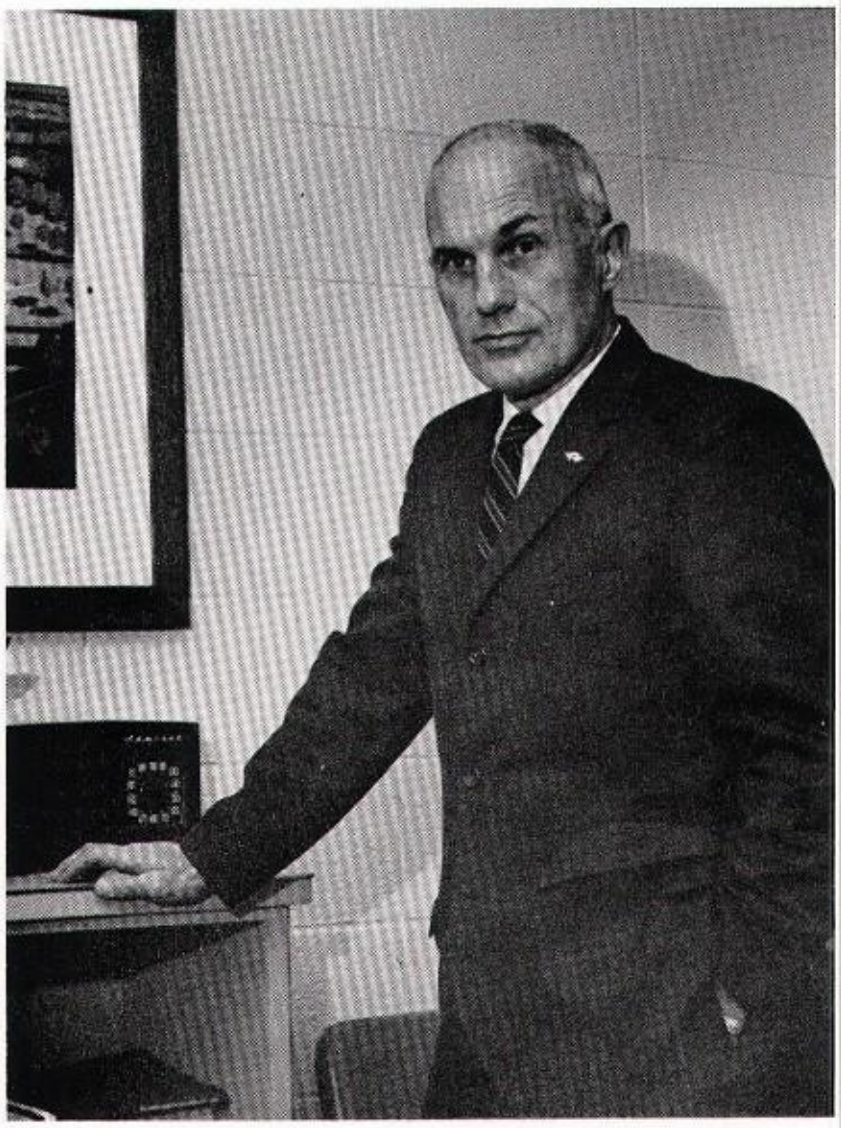
Northwest has a right to be proud of its 1,746 eager participants who helped make Northwest a well run efficient place to increase their knowledge.

The eighty-eight faculty members worked hard to prepare our 1,656 students prepare themselves for the academic world. Three hundred forty-eight seniors graduated, leaving behind 1,308 eager underclassmen ready to increase and strengthen Northwest in many aspects.

The rhythm of daily life at Northwest, the memories of a loyal body of people working to pace all other schools in maturity and the art of getting along with others makes us proud to present our Pace Setting Participants!



Northwest's first principal, Mr. Kenneth M. Smartz, fits daily home room announcements into his busy schedule.



Mr. George N. Gale, vice-principal in charge of financing, has a job as the number one person in charge of all money coming into the school and all of the money going out.

91 Faculty, staff Pace 2nd year

Northwest's 91 teachers and administrators helped the Pioneers set the pace in 407 classes, five days out of every week.

Pioneers can be proud of their faculty with more than 70 per cent of the teachers holding Masters Degrees or higher. The pace in academic achievement has been set for Northwest students to excel.

The English and Science departments boast the largest number of teachers, each having 16 to its credit, followed closely by the Math and Business Education departments, each with eight.

The Physical Education department has seven instructors; the Industrial Arts department has six; and the Home Economics department has five. Last is the Music and Art departments', each having three teachers; and the smallest department the librarian.

Special credit should be given to our principal, two vice-principals, Director of Guidance, and our two deans. They play an important role in the operation of our school. Northwest is also proud of its new guidance program. This program, consisting of four teachers, has been organized to assist the home room teachers.

Mr. Richard C. Cummins, guidance director, had an added responsibility when he became the first senior class sponsor for the first graduating class.

Mr. Wayne H. Kincaid, vice-principal in charge of school curriculum, must plan schedules for the coming semester and arrange a feasible plan for the forward moving Pioneers.

Mr. Paul D. Heaton and Mrs. Constance Zimlich, dean of boys and dean of girls respectively, spent most of their school hours counseling and helping confused NHSers.

School's first seniors Complete final lap

Northwest High School's first graduating class will consist of 369 students. The class is unique in the fact that they have, in effect, waited for two years to graduate. The present seniors were also the upperclass men in their junior year since NHS had no senior class.

For the first time, seniors elected class officers, assembled in one home room, and sat together in the cafeteria, where they were allowed to eat first every day. Talk of the senior prom, Sayonara, commencement, and vespers services seemed to fill the air as some seniors came down with that well-known disease "Senioritis". Trading senior pictures took the place of note passing in many study halls as the newness of senior status took hold.

The first senior year also afforded the chance for many first and pace setting traditions that will be a part of Northwest from now on. Class officers, class rings, commencement announcements, senior name cards, yearbooks, Dress-Up Day, Mock Elections with seniors running for offices, and senior recognition at pep assemblies, all added to the heritage of Northwest as its first graduating class anticipated filing through its doors for the last time.

Plans for the senior prom began on the first day of school. The prom was held at the I.U. Medical Center. Decoration and refreshment committees kept many seniors busy working after school for what seemed like an eternity before the prom.

Mr. Richard Cummins, head senior sponsor, and Ollie Matthews, president of the senior class informed students of up-coming events and senior committee meetings daily.

Pioneers sports show increased maturity
Varsity competition sets the pace for '65

This was truly Northwest's pace setting year in sports. Northwest pressed forward and proved they had what it takes to be true Pioneers. Many firsts were attained, and Northwest was now recognized on the same athletic scale as other schools.

The reserve football team became the "64-65" city champs, and NHS was proud to have the city cross country champion among its cross country team members. These are a few of the pace-setting activities which were achieved by our sports-minded Pioneers.

With ability, courage, spirit, and desire Pioneers won; with sportsmanlike playing and a desire to do better they lost. Whether the sport was football, cross country, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, wrestling, or golf the maturing Pioneer athletes were truly setting the pace in sports.

First year golf team Posts 10-5 record

The varsity golf team finished its 1964 season with a 10-5 record.

The team started their season by defeating Chatard 8-2. After winning two more from Sacred Heart and Howe by the scores of 10-2 and 8-2, the linksmen suffered two losses in a row to Speedway and Manual.

Defending city champion, Broad Ripple, was defeated by the score of 9½-8½. Next came a win over Park School by a score of 11-1. Traveling to Shortridge, sporting a 5-2 record, the team lost its third match by the score of 11½-10½.

After losing two matches the golf team came back and won five matches in a row. Arlington finally broke the streak.

Playing in its first city tournament the golf team finished fifth. The team was led in the city tournament by number one man, Mike Shanahan with a 39 for nine holes of play.

In the sectional, the linksmen finished sixth.

Tennis team acquires Valuable experience

Mr. Jim Rodeheffer, tennis coach, greeted some fifteen turn outs for the first tennis meeting in early April.

An optomistic outlook was taken for the season though only two boys had any previous varsity experience. The team practiced at the Riverside tennis courts nearly every day and all through spring vacation. The first five boys were chosen the day before the first match.

During the season, the tennis team defeated Attucks, 7-0, and Scecina, 4-3. In the city tournament, held at Tarkington Tennis Center, and Riverside, only one boy had any success. Len McFarling, playing in the number 4 bracket, outlasted his opponent. However, Len was beaten in his second match to end the 1964 tennis season for N.H.S.

There were five returning lettermen this spring and the team expected to improve their 2-6 record.

A good yearbook must have time and work devoted to it. But, even with all the equipment present, this does not insure a perfect yearbook. The personalities which make a yearbook give any yearbook the depth it needs. This is where the editors make their presence known. Northwest's co-editors, Sandi Weaver and Dennis Harrold, put much effort and after school time into the 1965 Vanguard. Equally important are the other editorships. Sherri Leonard tackled the job of copy editor. Shan Hague served as activities editor. The student album and index was under the direction of Sandra Keeley. Sandra Davis was in charge of the faculty section and Sue Pence was the picture editor. Sports were the main concern of Bill Hedges and Steve Woolsey. The business department was under the management of Nancy McFall. Mike White was in charge of circulation and Jody Allemenos served as patron's page editor. Miss Maureen Cunningham was faculty advisor. Professional credit is extended to Associates Engraver, Loudermilk Studios, Interstate Studios, Benton Review Publishing Company and S. K. Smith Cover Company.
